C.N.R. PRESIDENT MAKES CONDITIONAL PROMISE TO BUILD ELEVATOR AT DOCKS

Arguments Advanced By Chamber of Commerce Committee Swing Sir Henry Thornton Toward Grain Elevator Project; Will Proceed With Assembly Plant As Quickly As Possible; Large Investment of Company on Island

Arguments advanced by directors of the Chamber of Commerce Canadian National Development Committee at a conference with Sir Henry Thornton this morning, resulted in a complete change in Sir Henry's reported decision that private capital should build an elevator in Victoria, and a conditional promise that the Canadian National Railways would construct an elevator at the Ogden Point Docks.

C. P. W. Schwengers, President of the Chamber, introduced the subject of discussion to Sir Henry, pointing out that the low port charges in Victoria should be an encouragement to harbor development. He illustrated this statement by pointing out that the province of Alberta was importing its liquor for the government stores through this port rather than Vancouver, owing to lower port dues.

Sir Henry pointed out, in commenting on the suggestion of direct construction of a grain elevator by the railroad company, that the company was not in the elevator business, but was ready to co-operate with anybody who might establish one here.

He expressed the hope primarily that the board would assist in working for the removal of certain legal disabilities concerning the application of the unused terminal bonds guaranteed by the Province as part of the agreement with the Canadian Northern Pacific Railway, to permit their use for elevator purposes.

Secondly that assurance should be forthcoming that an elevator company would be ready to operate the elevator when erected.

Thirdly he wished the assurance given that there would be adequate steamship facilities for the carrying of the grain to other parts of the world.

On behalf of the chamber, Mr. Schwengers undertook to work towards achieving the results indicated.

In the course of his remarks Sir Henry pointed out further that the company was proceeding with the construction of the branch line to the Vancouver Island, and the Assembly plant at Ogden Point, assuring an expenditure by the company to the extent of $250,000 on the island.

PLEASED WITH CONFERENCE

The conference with Sir Henry Thornton and his officers and directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce was one of a gratifying nature and brought to the assembly the objective we have been working for," said C. P. W. Schwengers, president of the Chamber this afternoon, after the conference.

Sir Henry impressed the members of the directorate and the committee with his far-reaching views as to the future of Victoria, both from the point of view of development which is taking place and will take place on the island, and also Victoria as a seaport.

Sir Henry announced that the C.N.R. had decided to proceed with the establishment of a lumber mill and a saw mill as quickly as possible, appreciating the necessity for the establishment of an export lumber port as an outlet for the many inland mills on Vancouver Island already existing, and others which will shortly be established.

TENTATIVE AGREEMENT

"In connection with the establishment of a grain elevator a tentative agreement was reached with Sir Henry as to the procedure which will lead up to the building of this elevator, and the president was requested by Sir Henry to place in writing to him the position of the Chamber of Commerce in the matter."

WEST COAST

Particulars were also submitted to Sir Henry on the development of the island.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE PREPARING ADDRESS

To Make Policy Statements When Formally Notified of Nomination

Washington, Aug. 2.—Having returned to his home in Massachusetts, President Coolidge again today spent all his spare time on his notification address.

Charles B. Warren, Federal Ambassador to Mexico, is visiting the White House for several days, during which time he will formally tender his resignation. Inasmuch as Mr. Warren was chairman of the platform committee at the Republican National Convention, his visit at this time will give Mr. Coolidge an opportunity to consult with him regarding the notification address as related to the party platform.

George Harvey, former Ambassador to Great Britain, who had visited the White House frequently within the past few weeks, was a guest with Mr. Warren, at luncheon yesterday at the White House, and is assumed to have political questions were touched upon.

SAYS SITUATION IN BESSARABIA THREATENING

Dr. C. U. Clark, Now Here, is Authority on Southern Europe

Came to B.C. to Lecture at University

That the situation in the Balkan peninsula is critical, and that the conflict about the future of Bessarabia may precipitate another international crisis is the statement of Dr. Charles Upson Clark, who is in the city during the week-end.

Dr. Clark is a personal acquaintance of the various Rumanian leaders, a friend of Prince and Princess Rumania, now at the Rumanian legation in Washington, D.C., and has at the leading Rumanian newspapers sent to him, so he is in close touch with developments in a country of which he has intimate knowledge.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM

"Rumania," said Dr. Clark, in a chat with The Times at the Dominion Hotel last evening, "is practically in the same position to Southeastern Europe as Poland is to Eastern Europe. In both cases small areas whose racial characteristics are distinct have found themselves with a great increase of territory occupied by many other races as well as their own, to be welded into a unit, and to be managed by a class of citizens who had no opportunity of training."

For instance, this is shown in the fact that many schools in Transylvania and in Bessarabia are being taught by Hungarian and Russian instructors, because the Rumanians have not enough teachers to send to their own schools.

SHIP DRIFTED, BUT NOW ON WAY TO PORT

Ss. Stanley Heading Under Own Power For Iloilo, Philippines

Boatload of Natives From Ms. Agusan Landed; Number Still Missing

Manila, Aug. 2.—The steamship Stanley, whose engines broke down several days ago while she was off the island of Palawan, is proceeding to Iloilo under her own power, said a wireless message picked up here to-day. It is believed repairs will be possible at Iloilo, the message said.

One lifeboat containing natives which put off from the Interior Island Motorship Agusan when it was last seen, was found off Mindanao last Tuesday has landed on the coast of Misamis Province, said a dispatch received here.

MANY MISSING

Early estimates placed the loss of life in the Agusan disaster at sixty, and although the exact number of persons aboard the craft when she burned is not known, it still is believed many are yet to be accounted for. The Interior Island steamer Costa rescued sixty survivors from the Agusan when she burned.

The coastguard vessel Bustamante, which has been searching for the bulk of the Agusan, has found no trace of her.

IRISH CONFERENCE TO-DAY A FAILURE

No Advance Made During Discussion Between MacDonald and Cosgrave

Submission of Boundary Bill to British Parliament Expected

London, Aug. 2.—The conference to-day between Premier MacDonald and Cosgrave of the Irish Free State for the purpose of finding a solution of the Irish boundary problem produced no results, it is understood. The Government, it is expected, will proceed with its plan to submit a bill which would sanction the formation of the boundary commission without the participation of Ulster.

London, Aug. 2.—Strong hope, and even belief, is expressed in many quarters that the week-end conference arranged between the British Ministers and the heads of the Northern and Southern Irish Governments will result in persuading Ulster to appoint a member of the boundary commission provided for in the Anglo-Irish Treaty, thus breaking the deadlock which has existed since the ratification of the pact.

Part in the conference will be Premier MacDonald and Colonial Secretary Thomas for the British Government, and Mr. Cosgrave for the Free State and the Marquis of Londonderry and Hugh Pollock for Ulster.

CONSERVATIVE SUPPORT

The moderate Conservatives are said to be backing the British Government's efforts toward such a settlement, but doubt is expressed by some whether the Ulstermen will be able to induce the Free States to agree to such a definition of the commissioners' duties as to limit them to rectification of the boundary line between Northern and Southern Ireland without transferring any considerable part of the northern area to the Free State—a point upon which the Ulstermen are declared to be inflexible.

ELECTION POSSIBILITY

In the event of the week-end efforts failing, some of the political writers discuss the possibility of the Government forcing the issue immediately without waiting until autumn to introduce its projected bill, which would sanction the formation of the boundary commission without Ulster. These writers say Secretary Thomas's statement on the matter in the House of Commons yesterday does not necessarily imply that the Government is prepared to do so.

C.P.R. NEXT WEEK TO SELL DEBENTURES TOTALING $10,000,000

New York, Aug. 2.—Following the successful sale of bonds totalling approximately $20,000,000 by the Canadian National Railways in the New York market early in the week, an announcement was made to-day that the Canadian Pacific Railway next week will sell through the National City Company $10,000,000 of perpetual consolidated four per cent. debenture stock. The offering price expected is $92 a share.

ALLIES AGREE ON PLAN FOR REPARATIONS AND INVITE GERMANS TO CONFERENCE

London, Aug. 2.—Premier MacDonald this afternoon sent to the German Embassy an invitation to the German Government to send delegates to the reparations conference here.

London, Aug. 2.—A complete programme for launching the Dawes reparation plan was agreed upon by the Inter-allied conference here during a half-hour plenary session at the Foreign Office this morning. The Allied Premiers and United States Ambassador Kellogg took up the technical point with which the experts had vainly struggled in two all-night sessions, and after modifications which Premier MacDonald and Herriot accepted the compromise settlement was reached.

LONG AT WORK

When the agreement was reached the weary experts, who had slept little during the last forty-eight hours, left the conference room and the chief delegates began framing the invitation for the German Government to send a delegation to London. Premier MacDonald will hand the invitation to the German Embassy this afternoon, and Foreign Minister Stresemann and his colleagues are expected to reach London Monday night.

DOCUMENT PREPARED

Meanwhile the conference will recess with the exception of the drafting committee, which is drafting the results of the fortnight's work, so the document can be submitted to the Germans. The conference will enter its final phase with the arrival of the Germans, who will be asked to express their opinions on the programme for putting the Dawes scheme into operation.

D. BURKE TO BE HONORED IN OTTAWA

Federal Government Will Congratulate Bisley King's Prize Winner

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Premier King will tender congratulations on behalf of the Government of Canada when Private Desmond Burke, nineteen-year-old King's Prize winner at Bisley, is feted on Parliament Hill to-morrow.

Mayor Champagne will read an illuminated address, which he will afterward present to Private Burke on behalf of the city. Private Burke will be asked to sign the book of honor for the City Hall, a record of those who have been publicly honored by the city.

Following the formal reception and greetings, Private Burke will be escorted by military units to the armories, where he will be welcomed by his own regiment, the Governor-General's Footguards, in which he is being granted a commission in recognition of his meritorious service, and he will sign the necessary application forms for a commission.

From the Union Station to Parliament Hill the young marksman will be placed in the "Chair" and carried shoulder high by picked comrades from his regiment in the place of honor in the procession.

100,000,000 POUNDS OF NEW EXPLOSIVE TO BE MADE FOR CLEARING OF LAND IN U.S.

Seattle, Aug. 2.—Thirty-nine million pounds of pyrotol, a new type of explosive adapted for land clearing, will be manufactured at the Puget Sound plant of the Department of Agriculture for the Government and sold to farmers and land clearers of the Pacific Northwest and Alaska, according to an announcement by T. E. Dorem, Pacific Northwest manager of the company.

The pyrotol, developed by the United States Bureau of Mines, will be made from war materials remaining in the Government's possession and production will start immediately. The entire contract with the Government, however, calls for 100,000,000 pounds of explosive, which will take about five years to make.

POUND-STERLING IS AT $4.43 TO-DAY IN THE UNITED STATES

New York, Aug. 2.—The Allied agreement for settlement of the German reparations problem caused a sharp rally in foreign exchanges at the opening of today's market here. Demand sterling mounted to a new high for the year at $4.43, an overnight gain of more than two cents. French francs responded with a ten-point advance, selling at 5.25 cents.

State Attorney Attacks Psychiatrist's Testimony at Leopold-Loeb Hearing

Chicago, Aug. 2.—A direct attack on the credibility of Dr. William A. White, head of the Government Hospital for the Insane, at Washington, was made in Judge Caverly's court to-day by Robert E. Crowe, State Attorney, who cross-examined the doctor on his testimony in defence of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of fourteen-year-old Robert Franks.

YESTERDAY'S SESSION

Testifying for the defence at yesterday's session, Dr. William A. White said the dual personality complex of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb worked with "almost diabolical ingenuity" to produce the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks.

"Loeb considered the crime an intellectual feat," said the witness. "Leopold felt into the plan for the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks."

FOG HOLDS TWO U.S. PLANES AT ORKNEYS AND MACLAREN TO FLY TO ATTU, ALEUTIANS

When Two U.S. Machines Turned Back To Kirkwall, Lieut. Nelson Drove Ahead for Horna Fjord; British World Plane Had Accident At Nikolski, Komandorski Islands, But No One Was Hurt and Party Is To Continue Trans-Pacific Flight.

Harna Fjord, Aug. 2.—Lieut. Nelson's aeroplane, one of the three United States round-the-world machines, arrived here from Kirkwall, Orkney Islands, to-day.

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 2.—Lieut. Erik Nelson, United States world airman, flying from the Orkneys to Iceland, passed the United States destroyer Reid this afternoon, 120 miles southeast of Horna Fjord, Iceland, headed for that island. A United States' cruiser is reported fifty miles off Horna Fjord, directing the course of Nelson's plane.

Kirkwall, Aug. 2.—Lieut. Erik Nelson and his mechanic, Lieut. John Harding, Jr., in the aeroplane New Orleans, were believed here this afternoon to be making a lone attempt to reach Iceland on the first leg of the United States world airman's trans-Atlantic flight.

The attempt of Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, the flight commander, to lead the fliers to Horna Fjord, Iceland, the first scheduled halt in the trip across the Atlantic, was frustrated by a heavy fog which lay in the path of the fliers north of the Orkneys.

Lieut. Smith, in the aeroplane Chicago, and Lieut. Wade, in the Boston, were trapped by the fog when only sixty miles from here, after a late start this morning, and were forced to turn back and return to their base in Houton Bay.

U. S. Coastguard Cutter Algonquin, between Alaska and Attu Islands, Aug. 2.—The British world fliers' aeroplane met with an accident at Nikolski, Komandorski Islands, to-day, but no one was hurt, says a wireless message from the Canadian trawler Thierval.

The party, headed by Major A. Stuart-MacLaren, flew to West Kamchatka from Pictou, Nova Scotia, Thursday, American time, said the Thierval's message. A flight was made from West Kamchatka to Nikolski to-day. Nikolski is on Baring Island.

A second message said the Thierval, which yesterday was off Cape Kronotski, Komandorski Islands, 600 miles from Nikolski, was proceeding full speed to Nikolski.

FOG PREVAILS

A thick fog prevailed to-day over the North Pacific Ocean. The Algonquin to-day was bound for Kiska Island, in the Aleutians, 200 miles east of Attu Island. Attu Island is at the western end of the Aleutian Islands.

TO FLY TO ATTU

The first message from the Thierval said that MacLaren was to leave Nikolski to-morrow for Attu Island. With him, it was understood, was flying Lieut. Colonel E. E. Brown, of the British army, who had been cruising since early Spring in North Pacific waters making arrangements for the flight of the British Expedition from Japan to Canada.

The Thierval, the first message received, had been flying from Japan to Canada, and British officers who had been assigned to duty in connection with flying conditions and bases along the route from the Kuriles, Japan. This message was sent from fifty-five miles west of Cape Kronotski.

The Algonquin was expected to reach Kiska Island to-day.

SIGHTED BY DESTROYER

On Board Cruiser Richmond, Aug. 2.—(By Wireless to the Associated Press)—The United States destroyer Reid, stationed between the Faroe Islands and Iceland, reported this afternoon that Lieut. Erik Nelson, in the aeroplane New Orleans, was passing over, headed for Horna Fjord, Iceland.

Thornhaven, Faroe Islands, Aug. 2.—A telegram from the Isle of Suderoy in the Faroes, this afternoon, said an aeroplane had been heard passing over three villages at 12:08 o'clock. Fog hindered observation.

RADIO SETS MUST BE LICENSED, IS RULED BY COURT

Prosecution Under Radio Act Results in Nominal Fine And Return of Set

At the close of an extended sitting in City Police Court today, Arthur L. Meugens was fined $5 under the provisions of the Radio Telegraph Act for failure to secure a license before installing a wireless set. A second count, that of operating the set within given limits, fell through and was dismissed. The radio apparatus was ordered returned to its owner, by consent of the Minister of the Crown explained that the prosecution was not a vindictive one, but solely as a warning to the public that all who install operate radio sets must have a license. The license fee costs $1 and is to be obtained at the office of the Federal Wireless branch, Government Street.

Stuart Henderson, counsel for the defence, won an acquittal of the defendant on a charge of operating a set at 1221, Richards Street, between February 3 and July 10. No proof of operation was shown, he contended, and the court dismissed that section of the charge.

A conviction was returned on the other count, that of installing the set without license. In December, Henderson purchased the radio gear for his boy at Christmas time, and it was not used after the first few days. Later he took out a license to comply with the Act. Prosecution was brought in the meantime.

West Coast and the utilization of the large timber tracts in that section to furnish traffic for the Canadian National Railway. Mr. Henry was keenly interested, and asked for full particulars in writing for further consideration.

PEACE RIVER COUNTRY

This morning Sir Henry had an interview with Hon. John Oliver, the discussion more particularly with regard to the Peace River district. "We discussed how we could get into that country and its possibilities and development," said Sir Henry. "I am going there next week and shall spend some time there. Until I have done so I am not prepared to speak of what the Canadian National Railway may propose for its development." The Premier and Sir Henry also touched on freight rates. "We, however, had a short interview this morning and touched on the surface of the matter only," said the president.

NO COUGAR

Sir Henry returned last night from Sooke, where he spent part of two days in company with C. W. W. Schwenger, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce; Alderman A. E. Todd, M. H. Jackson, K.C., chairman of the Game Conservation Board, and C. L. Harrison and Sir Henry's son, with Dad James as guide. Dry weather and lack of deer prevented the daring hunter of Cowichan Lake and his famous cougar dog from tracking a panther to its lair, but the party had some excellent fishing and Sir Henry himself took half a dozen fine trout from the Sooke waters.

The actual party on the cougar hunt consisted of Sir Henry Thornton and his son, A. E. Todd, City Councillor; Claude L. Harrison and Dad James as guide. The hunt started yesterday morning. The party camped at Campbell's shack on Sooke Lake. After breakfast at the place, Harrison in typical hunter's style, the party headed out in the bush west of the lake. Dad James leading the way with his panther dog. In short while the dogs struck a scent and followed it faithfully for about an hour through the bush. The trail led up into the hills and after trailing without success for several miles the party decided to take another direction. The track was followed in both directions until it was lost in a dry valley. En route the party saw numerous deer and plenty of birds. Sir Henry delighted the party by his staying ability and good pleasure he took from day in the woods.

IMPRESSED WITH TIMBER

"The cougar hunt was not the main object of the trip," said Sir Henry this morning. "I had never been over the C.N.R. line before and wanted to see the country. It is a wonderful district and I was greatly impressed. We went four or five miles into the woods and there is a wonderful wealth of timber. From my observations it is apparent that there is a lot of valuable stands on Vancouver Island."

Other officials of Sir Henry's party who went to the end of the steel at Mile 79 on the C.N.R. line have also secured information for the president on the timber resources and other industries of Vancouver Island as seen from the company's road.

TENNIS AND GOLF

An ardent sportsman, Sir Henry, as on his last visit, will enjoy the excellent tennis and golfing offered in Victoria. This afternoon he will play on the Victoria Club's courts, to which he promised to return after his enjoyable games. New the occasion of his last visit. Sir Henry played himself an expert at the game when he was here before, with a powerful service and lightning accuracy. He placed returns. To-morrow he will play golf with the Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, and his opponent.

SUICIDE AT TACOMA

Tacoma, Aug. 2.—Under a lonely tree on a high ridge near Regent's Park here, the body of R. Stewart Smith, nineteen son of Dr. J. Ross Smith, a wealthy retired surgeon of Palo Alto, California, was found yesterday. It was a case of suicide, in the opinion of the coroner.

"I was alone when I went to sleep in my room in an apartment in Seattle, where he had been stopping," said a neighbor.

emotional premium this relationship offered. "I cannot see how 'Babe' (Leopold) would have entered into the plot alone. He had no criminalistic tendencies. 'Dickie' (Loeb) had these tendencies but would not have functioned to this extent by himself."

The witness pictured the two youths as the victims of phantasies, with Loeb still under their influence and sinking lower all the time, but with Leopold battling them behind a self-imposed barrier of intellectuality.

He said all had not been happy in the relationship, as each had considered killing the other.

CHARACTER ANALYSIS

Dr. White, who was on the stand throughout the sessions yesterday, presented an exhaustive analysis of the character of the information of the court. At the outset State Attorney Crowe interjected numerous objections. But with few exceptions the judge allowed the defence to proceed along its own line, stopping the witness only when he thought Dr. White was straying from the circumstances of the present case into the realm of academic discussion.

The witness reached his observations on the dual personality of the defendants after a long review of the life history of each. He referred to Loeb as a "selfish, cold, calculating, 'Babe,' explaining that he fell into the habit of applying the definite to the former and that Leopold had his own habit of being called by his college nickname.

"Emotionally the boys are in an infantile state," said Dr. White. "Loeb is about four or five years old in that sense. He is not more than five or six years old."

"Both, too, started with a feeling of inferiority, but while Dickie succumbed to it and developed a social tendency, Babe defied himself, by consciously building up a feeling of intellectual superiority, fortified by a philosophy of mechanism in which there was no God and emotion was stifled."

The big riddle of the case as to which boy actually stunned and strangled young Frank was not solved by the doctor. Mr. Crowe asked him about it on cross-examination, but the expert said he had not taken up that aspect of the crime with his subject and developed it.

"It really made no difference as to their guilt," he explained.

"Who do you think killed Frank?" persisted Mr. Crowe.

"It must have been Dickie," said Dr. White.

Loeb visibly gulped when this came out. He leaned forward and appeared to grip himself. Leopold looked thoughtful and stroked his chin.

The doctor said the homicide "could not be understood unless the two were examined in the light of their relations with each other."

LEOPOLD WAS AUDIENCE

"Dickie, with his inferiority complex, developed definite anti-social tendencies," he said. "He needed an audience and in reality Babe was that audience. In Dickie's phantasia, his imagination, Leopold looked like an audience. But Babe constantly reinforced Dickie where he needed bolstering."

"Babe also needed a complement and he looked out Dickie. They took turns in playing the parts of inferior and superior—king and slave."

"Their phantasia lives fitted into each other with almost devilish ingenuity."

ALIBI STORIES

Dr. White stated that in the Frank case it was Babe who evolved the alibi stories that were to save them if adhered to. It was Babe, too, he said, who insisted upon the telephone call to Jacob Frank, father of the slain boy, in a final effort to collect the $10,000 ransom money.

Dickie by this time was convinced their cause was lost and it was useless to run further risk," said Dr. White.

In his outline of the boys' lives Dr. White dwelt in Loeb's case upon the influence of "a real koolish, somewhat prudish and austere goodness," who cared for Dickie about six years, starting from the time he was four.

HIS FIRST SCHOOL

Leopold, according to the doctor, suffered from an "inferiority complex" as a child, being small in stature, sickly and having been sent for the start of his education to a co-educational institution in which only two of the pupils were boys. This resulted in Babe being twitted about attending a "girl's school," the expert said. Up to the age of twelve, he said, Babe was under the care of governesses, who escorted him to and from school.

PHILOSOPHY OF MECHANISM

Dr. White said Babe resented all this, and, fortified by a precocious intelligence, began early to stifle emotions because they resulted only in suffering. He was, the witness stated, this worked into a philosophy of mechanism in which intellectuality reigned supreme and there was no room for emotion. The witness said the boy came in contact being explained by natural causes and effects.

In adolescence Loeb indulged himself in phantasies of a vengeance which made him either the world's greatest detective of crime or the "master mind" of a band of underworld characters.

POSED AS BOOTLEGGER

Falselyhood, first used successfully to outwit his governess, was developed at this stage until it extended to his family and daily companions. "Dickie once shot a hole in his shirt then called on a girl and posed as a bootlegger," said Dr. White.

At the same stage of life, the doctor said, Leopold was devoting his energies to erection of his fortification of intelligence, sneering habitually at those he considered his inferiors and turning from his mind all considerations based upon sympathy or tender feelings.

AS A RESCUER

The phantasia of Dickie at times being seriously injured and in danger and he saving him. He considered himself a rescuer and a hero. He was a scholar and, as Babe says, he almost completely identified himself with Dickie.

Both early began to smoke and drink, their precocity having thrown them into contact with older boys. Dr. White pointed out that it was Leopold who used his unusual intelligence to work out details of the plot. In the opinion of the witness, he said, however, that it must have been Loeb who thought of the killing. "For Babe had no stomach for criminalistic things."

THOUGHT OF KILLING

This situation once developed to the point where Loeb "seriously considered" replying with another "punch," said Dr. White.

"It is significant that these boys both had in mind the possibility of killing the other member of the compact," said Dr. White. "In Babe's case it was not especially serious, but Dickie did think of killing Babe, because he thought the latter after all had no stomach and he felt the day might come when he would get him in trouble."

Motive for the crime were found by Dr. White in the phantasies of the youths. He said Dickie frequently had visioned himself as being surrounded by adoring and naked men and women and with girls gazing at him through the bars.

SIX OBJECTIVES

"Dickie had six definite objectives in the joy in planning the thrill in contemplating the anticipation of getting the ransom money, the publicity, his own discussion of the crime with others, and at least, the $10,000 ransom itself," said Dr. White.

Leopold, the doctor testified, had anticipated a self-sacrifice of his principles and at the trial that might result from discovery.

"This trial Babe said he looked forward to as one of the most interesting intellectual experiences of his life," he related Dr. White. "Unfortunately he finds it very stupid and boring."

Leopold looked forward to the experience of considering himself objectively as a murderer. He finds after all that this is not an exciting thing, but a matter of change, as happened. As a murderer he thinks and feels very much as he did before."

$250 A DAY

On cross-examination State Attorney Crowe brought out that Dr. White was receiving a fee of $250 a day.

The prosecutor and the witness agreed that the willingness of the defendants to give information to the defence attorneys and withholding it from the state might be considered significant as to their present mental condition, the doctor adding that he thought it might also indicate a desire to escape the consequences of their act.

"Crowe was starting on Leopold's 'inferiority complex' when court adjourned. He asked the physician if Babe did not appear soundly physically, and the doctor said the defendant had good muscular development, but was 'decidedly lacking in stature.'" the outlying districts. "The situation in the lightest question that Russian interests have been behind the communist outbreaks in Rumania, as the recent blowing up of the largest ammunition supply near Bukharest showed. The Russian influence there has taken a marked forward movement since the abandonment in Russia of the announced non-interference policy of the Soviet administration. Now Russia is looking, as she did before the Russo-Turkish war of 1878, toward Constantinople, and Bessarabia is the first step."

"The problem has been complicated by the expulsion of Jews from Russia in 1921, and since that time the Hebrews have pushed into adjacent countries and have filled the universities and occupations in the cities. This fact has inspired the Fascism of the Rumanian people, along the lines of anti-Semitic demonstrations, though not yet so serious as those of Hungary, particularly at Buda Pest."

EFFECT IN RUSSIAN POLITICS

"Probably the recent visit of the Rumanian royal party to London was inspired by the critical situation, and an outbreak between Russia and Rumania will largely depend upon the internal situation in the Russian capital, as the advent of peaceful conditions would warrant an advance in the southwest."

"Apart from the strategic value and racial claims of Rumania to the south, the French and the Danube, Bessarabia is very rich, with the finest black soil, capable of all kinds of crops, and perhaps one of the most productive areas of Europe."

Dr. Clark declared, from careful observation of the situation, that the circumstances were fraught with trouble. An opportunity which had just come to him to winter in Europe would be welcomed by him to gather up-to-date information at first hand of the situation. He expected to leave in November, and would visit all the chief cities of Southeastern Europe.

WHEAT TO-DAY AT $1.40 IN WINNIPEG

Ottawa, Aug. 2 (Canadian Press). Improvement in crop conditions throughout the prairies, due to recent rain, is reported by telegraph as at the end of this week to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics by the Departments of Agriculture of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Ontario and Quebec. Drought continues in British Columbia and New Brunswick. Elsewhere in Eastern Canada, except in the Eastern Townships of Quebec, average crops are now predicted of grain, hay and fruit.

On the prairies an average crop is expected in Manitoba, less discouraging reports, comes from Saskatchewan because of rains in the last few days, and in Alberta an improvement in feed and late grain is noted, but the rains came too late to help the wheat crop in the large areas in the south affording a drought.

B.C. NEEDS RAIN

A report from the British Columbia Department of Agriculture, dated August 1, indicates that the greater part of the province has suffered from lack of rain. The moisture in the form of local showers. Hay was harvested under ideal conditions in nearly all districts, but the yield was generally below that of last year. Potatoes and other roots are much in need of rain. Grasshopper damage is mentioned in some cases.

WINNIPEG POLICE SEARCH FOR MEN

Holdup Yesterday Foiled; Man Committed Suicide; Two Were Arrested

Winnipeg, Aug. 2 (Canadian Press).—One bandit dead, two under arrest, a $2,000 payroll recovered and a city-wide search now under way for other men believed implicated, is the story of a two-hour crime wave in Winnipeg yesterday afternoon.

Mike Kolson, twenty-five, committed suicide after he had been captured in possession of a stolen taxicab. The police refuse to divulge the names of the men arrested, but they were taken into custody following the robbing of A. F. Henderson, an accountant for a local manufacturing company, who was carrying a bag containing $2,000 in currency. Kolson, who had been married only three weeks before, left his home yesterday morning and left his bride a note saying: "If I do not return you will find the car at the General Hospital and I will be no more."

TIED TAXI DRIVER

Kolson and a companion hired a taxi at the General Hospital, drove to a suburb and forced the driver out, trusting him to a tree. They returned to the city, and while driving at a terrific rate of speed, were apprehended by a motorcycle patrolman. Kolson's companion escaped, but he was taken to a nearby house, and while the constable was telephoning for the patrol wagon, he whipped out a revolver and shot himself through the head. He died just after admittance to the hospital, which he had left only a few hours before.

BANK ROBBERS

Police declared the two men were bank robbers and had evidently planned to hold up a bank during the noon hour. The car contained masks, guns and jimmies. Kolson was a druggist and a graduate of the University of Manitoba.

Shortly after the suicide, the police were called to the warehouse district in the centre of the city, where the accountant of the manufacturing company had been held up.

A man pushed a gun in Henderson's face and grabbed the bag containing the money. He was followed by a bystander who, after a struggle, forced him to drop the bag. The robber, however, broke away and escaped. He is believed to have been accompanied by another man.

ISSUE THE TERMINAL BONDS

SIR HENRY THORNTON has been reported as saying that the Canadian National Railway would like to see an elevator at Victoria; "but we haven't the money for it."

This is a very natural thing for the President of the road to say in the ordinary way and more especially so in view of the tender regard which the Senate recently paid to "minority rights" and the "people's liberty." But there is another way out for Victoria.

Sir Henry may recollect, however, that the Government of this Province guaranteed Canadian Northern bonds to the value of about $12,000,000 for terminal purposes on this Coast. With the exception of a little more than $400,000 these bonds were issued and the money released by the late Government for Canadian Northern terminals on the Mainland.

It should be possible for the Canadian National Railway to issue these bonds and apply the money to the construction of an elevator at Ogden Point. Terminal facilities should embrace an elevator, or elevators, and Mr. Oliver, on behalf of the Province, already has consented to the proposal that the proceeds of these bonds be so utilized.

We commend this suggestion to Sir Henry Thornton as one the adoption of which would not place the proposal at the mercy of the Senate. And he will be the first to realize that such a development of Government property at the Outer Wharves should soon bring business and profit to that part of the Canadian National system.

Sooner or later, as the chief of the C.N. knows, all the ports on this Coast of the Dominion will be pressed into the service of handling the country's grain crop. Victoria has a right to be ready for that business.

THE CONFERENCE SUCCEEDS

THIS morning's news from London indicates that, as far as the Allies themselves are concerned, the fifteenth inter-Allied Conference has resulted in complete agreement among the conferees. And out of this latest discussion comes the promise that the Dawes plan to collect reparations from Germany will be put into operation and that the Allied Governments will give it their blessing.

Up to this point all seems to be well. To Germany has been allotted the next move. Premier MacDonald has invited her to send a delegation to study the agreement which has been reached and attach her signature thereto. In all probability Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann will proceed to London during the week end. It is suggested, however, that Mr. Charles E. Hughes will have a chat with the members of the German delegation before they leave Berlin. He has already talked to the French and Belgium authorities at Paris and Brussels and he is expected to reach Berlin to-day. Although little prominence seems to have been given to the plans of the United States Secretary of State, it seems fairly reasonable to assume that he is dropping a few gentle hints which are intended to convey the idea that the people over the way would like to see the Dawes plan given a chance.

In any event, even though Germany should jib and bluster and possibly postpone the application of the scheme, the chief point arising from this fifteenth Allied Conference is that common ground for agreement has been discovered for the first time since the gathering at Versailles. This is a hopeful augury in itself.

AFTER SUCCESSFUL LABORS

IT is not always that a member of either the Federal or the provincial Civil Service may enjoy the pleasure of voluntary resignation to the accompaniment of warm tribute from all shades of political thought. It is more noteworthy for such to be the case when an official in question has occupied a position involving the direction of an organization whose chief undertaking has been used as a political football upon more than one occasion.

Colonel R. D. Davies, however, leaves the chairmanship of the Land Settlement Board with the knowledge that he has given an excellent account of himself and that his administrative labors in the Department itself more especially in connection with the Sumas reclamation scheme, are warmly appreciated in all quarters. In fact it can be said that it is very largely due to the constant vigilance which Colonel Davies has kept upon this highly important project that the somewhat speculative aspect has been entirely lost in the practical proof of the scheme's feasibility.

Those who know Colonel Davies and those who have had occasion to do business with him will agree with the Premier when he describes him as "a fine type of public servant." He, therefore, is fully entitled to success in the new field of activity to which he is going. And The Times joins a host of friends who will extend to him their best wishes for his future prosperity.

ALL IN GOOD TIME

AUSTRALIA is a little bit mystified about the proposed All-Empire Conference and wonders why the Colonial Secretary should make a public announcement before extending official invitations to the participants.

There seems to be nothing very unusual about the procedure. The remarks which Mr. Thomas made at the Dominion Day banquet were hardly the result of a considered policy, and his further reference to the subject in the House of Commons during the discussion on Dominion representation at the inter-Allied Conference was little more than a reiteration of his previously expressed view that a number of points of apparent conflict could not be cleared up until a free and frank discussion had taken place.

As far as the Ottawa Government is concerned the Prime Minister has received a cable suggesting such a gathering as that desired by the Colonial Secretary; but this has not been followed up by an official invitation—a fact in itself which implies that the British Cabinet has not yet had the matter under advisement in a formal way.

October has been mentioned as a possible month for the Conference. The date, however, is a matter which can only be fixed after the convenience of the personnel of the various delegations has been fully considered. Premier King can not be expected to alter the arrangements for his tour of the West, and if Mr. Thomas is going to South Africa shortly it looks as if this year will pass out before a meeting can be arranged.

There is no urgency; the Empire will remain undisturbed even if the meeting should not take place for a couple of years—or at all.

If the number of conferences mean anything it can never be said that the Allied statesmen have not tried to settle the German reparations question.

A murder a day was committed in Chicago during the months of June and July. Let those who prefer Chicago to Victoria speak up now or for ever hold their peace.

We hope that the proper authorities are taking good care that the young white bear is properly guarded. His worth has now been well advertised and we seem to be living in an age of hold-ups.

The nearest Sir Henry Thornton got to a cougar yesterday seems to have been an expression of view by one of the party that the dogs had been on the scent of one. Is the Senate still protecting "down-trodden minorities?"

A writer in The Colonist says the special political articles from Ottawa with which it periodically adorns its pages are annoying to The Times because they are alleged to have been written or edited by Dr. Tolmie. May we remark for the sake of accuracy that The Times is not at all annoyed over the articles or what is in them, but it is amused at the frequent conflict between them and the utterances of Mr. Meighen in the House of Commons, as reported in Hansard, which suggests a curious absence of team play between the Conservative leader and his propaganda factory. These articles are sent out to all the Conservative newspapers in Canada from the headquarters of the party organization where there is a staff presided over by Dr. Tolmie, whose evolution from a Unionist into a full-blown Tory was emphasized by his appointment as the party organizer. They are not widely published by the party press because many Conservative newspapers do not like their quality as campaign material. They are too obviously partisan to be effective. Only the party die-hards see any political virtue in them; and the prospects are that Mr. Meighen in his own interests will maintain a closer supervision over them than his parliamentary duties have permitted him to do up to this time.

CANADIANS ALL

From The London (Ont.) Free Press

With local markets the West will not be so dependent for the sale of its products upon markets thousands of miles away. The problems of the West will become more similar to those of the East. In any case, we are all Canadians, and no part of the Dominion can afford to see one section ruined for the advantage of another. One trouble with Canada to-day is too much sectionalism. What we need is a little more national thinking and a broad, not a parochial viewpoint.

CANADA WIND

You may praise the glimmer and glory of Spring if you will,
And the beauty of earth, set free from the frenzy's embrace,
Give me the north wind sweeping over the hill,
And the scurry of driving snow that stings my face.

Give me the sky with its glimmer of stars steel-blue,
And a scimitar-blade of moon, swung low and bright—
You may keep the languorous darkness, drenched with dew,
And the slumberous scents and sounds of the Summer night.

Ah, me! for the snow that creaks beneath my tread,
For the triumphant wind, that calls and laughs
and sings,
That shouts to the stars and bends the pine-tree's head,
And over the wide white world its challenge flings.

Then praise the dew and the showers of Spring if you will,
Or the long, hot Summer days with their languid grace,
Give me the north wind, whirling over the hill,
And the scurry of driving snow, that stings my face.

Dr. Frank Crane on
"Some Popular Beliefs"

(Copyright)

VILHJALMUR STEFANSSON, the Arctic explorer, writing in The London Spectator, demolishes many popular errors to which most of us still cling, although they are vestiges of uncritical ages.

Many people have been indignant that their time-honored beliefs should thus be attacked and have written letters protesting against the Stefansson article.

1. In the first place Stefansson says that the North Pole is not the coldest place on earth, as many people imagine.

Oceans always act as a moderating influence upon temperature and the North Pole is surrounded by the sea.

There are parts of the United States and of Siberia where the cold is greater than at the North Pole.

The temperature at the Pole never falls below -60 degrees. In Montana thermometers have registered -60 degrees, and in Siberia there are places where -70 degrees and -80 are not uncommon, and one of them has experienced -93 degrees, which is 30 degrees below the temperature of the North Pole.

2. Another popular belief is that ostriches bury their heads in the sand. This superstition, Stefansson says, is thousands of years old, but exists only among races unfamiliar with ostriches' habits.

Colonel Roosevelt told Stefansson that when in Africa he had never seen any of all negroes he ever met who buried their heads in the sand.

He had never heard of such a thing and on the contrary expressed the greatest respect for this bird's astuteness.

3. It is reasonable to suppose that if ostriches were as stupid as they would be fall prey shortly to other predatory animals.

4. Another superstition which Stefansson attacks is the habit of rubbing snow on any part affected by frost bite.

"This he declares is an interesting survival in folk lore of one of the most fundamental principles of ancient logic; that 'like cures like'."

He tells us that the Eskimo never employs this method and when it is suggested to him he rejects it as in the highest degree absurd and dangerous.

"It is possible," says Stefansson, "to get thousands to testify to the beneficial effect of the snow treatment of frost bites, but not nearly as many as would have testified, in Columbus' time to the flatness of the earth; or, in Washington's time, to the efficacy of blood-letting."

5. The next superstition attacked is that human beings cannot live on meat alone. He himself has gone four hundred days without tasting vegetable food.

Certain Eskimo tribes subsist solely on meat and fish and eat vegetables only in the direst straits to avoid starvation.

6. He denies the belief that Eskimos are especially fond of fat and that they drink oil. "The Eskimos," he writes, "undoubtedly would be fond of fat and might even drink oil, if it were true that they were exposed to more cold than the rest of us, but the fact is that the Eskimos are actually exposed to less cold than the average American or Englishman."

The Crown Colony of British Columbia

ON August 2, 1858, was created the Crown

Colony of British Columbia by Act of Parliament of Great Britain. This colony comprised the southern half of what is now the mainland of the Province of British Columbia, the northern boundary being the Peace River.

Peace River, Vancouver Island, which had been a colony since 1849, was excluded. The formation of this colony from the vast fur-hunting territory of the Hudson's Bay Company, which for more than a generation had held unquestioned sway from the Great Lakes to the Pacific and from the 49th parallel of latitude to the Arctic Circle, was completed by the influx of gold seekers to the Fraser River sands early in 1858. Several thousand men from the ends of the earth were suddenly injected into the wilderness by this mad surge toward the beds of the precious metal, and they had to be governed by law.

Life such as had prevailed in other gold-fields, notably California, could not be tolerated here. So, what the great fur company most had feared and, like all monopolistic fur corporations in the history of our country, tried to prevent, the advent of the settler and the establishment of civil government, had happened.

James Douglas, later Sir James, who had grown up in the service of the Hudson's Bay Company, had been second-in-command at Fort Vancouver on the Columbia River on the boundary between the present States of Washington and Oregon, and in 1843 was appointed Governor also of the new colony of British Columbia, provided he resigned his connection with the Hudson's Bay Company. This he did, and for five years ruled autocratically but most efficiently the two independent settlements.

British law and order was enforced on the Fraser as law and order had never been enforced before among the wild Ishmaelish miners who descended from all the diggings of the world, and was enforced only less perfectly than in the Yukon forty years after, when the Royal North West Mounted Police added such laurels to their name. For this state of comparative peace and security in the gold-fields were responsible Sir James Douglas's appointees, Colonel Moody, commandant of the Royal Engineers, Chief Commissioner of Lands and Public Works, and Lieutenant-Governor as well, and Judge Begbie, later Sir Matthew Begbie, Chief Justice, Attorney-General, and Commissioner of Police. Remarkable servants of our country and empire in critical pioneer times, these men deserved to be and are remembered with honor.

In the Act of 1858 there was provision for the institution of a legislature "to consist of the Governor and a Council, Council and Assembly, to be composed of such and so many persons, and to be appointed or elected in such manner and for such periods, and subject to such regulations as to Her Majesty may seem expedient." This wording gave latitude enough to Governor Douglas, who, product of a stern autocratic discipline in the Hudson's Bay Company service, was no friend to popular institutions. At such a time as that he deemed them quite out of the question, because the British element of the population was small.

The population was migratory with no stake in the country, and there was no settled farming or manufacturing class with interests to protect. He immediately appointed Colonel Moody and Judge Begbie as his Council, to satisfy the letter of the law, and got down to work.

Possibility of Advent of "Next War" Not so Remote as Generally Believed Addressing a well-attended meeting of Summer School students at the High School auditorium last night, Dr. Charles Upson Clark, noted journalist and lecturer of New York, sounded a warning note in connection with the problem of world peace.

Taking as his subject, "Some of the Great Problems of New Europe," Dr. Clark made an interesting discourse on the progress and retrogression of world affairs in the last few years.

The speaker foresaw trouble ahead in that the creation of international boundaries at the close of the war had not struck the happiest choice as the boundaries set still left a gap in most of the smaller countries affected. For generations there had been a great natural boundary in Europe, those to the West looking to Rome and those to the East to Constantinople. The international boundary provisions handed up this natural division and left resentment in each of the small nations who had been deprived of her a piece and there a parcel of territory they had come to call their own.

War, he thought, would inevitably result from the chaotic condition of Europe. "Constitutional government had not yet been established in Yugoslavia after six years of effort, Italy under its strong man, Mussolini, had preferred a dictatorship to the usual form of government."

It was problematical if the Turk would stay satisfied with his disposition. In short hatred and suspicion, always a dominant factor in the Balkans, was now of greater application in that the war had left discontent and unrest in a great part of the habitable portions of the globe. From all this the speaker argued a recurrence of strife in which it was only a question of time until the world was plunged again into the "next war."

The speaker cautioned his hearers against a too ready acceptance of the printed word. There was much propaganda abroad, he said, and traces of it were to be found even in religious publications. Dr. Clark apologized for the fact that his summary of world conditions was a gloomy one, but it was the world as he saw it.

J. W. Gibson, director of the Summer School, presided, extending to Dr. Clark the thanks of the gathering for an instructive address. Mrs. Gibson and Miss Eva Hart contributed to an excellent musical programme.

C.G.I.T. GIRLS CAMP
AT BEAVER LAKE

Twenty-four merry campers arrived at Beaver Lake on Monday. The beauty of the surroundings, the lake, and the woods, produced such admiration that expressions of pleasure and delight were heard on all sides. The calm and glassy lake was soon alive with laughing swimmers. Those who could not swim went to the reservoir and received able instruction from Miss Olive Whyte.

On Tuesday evening the girls performed an impressive initiation ceremony. This was done in an entirely Indian fashion, and with united "How-hows," all showing their willingness to keep the camp spirit alive.

Following this Miss Margaret Saunders, Deaconess in the employ of the Social Service Department of the Methodist Church of Canada, gave a splendid talk to the girls around the camp fire.

On Wednesday morning Miss Helen Henderson talked to the girls on Life Service, and on Thursday morning Mrs. Freeman on Missions. Besides these interesting talks there are swimming, rowing, baseball and many other delightful pastimes.

The whole programme of the camp tends to lift the girls' ideals to a higher level, as well as develop their bodies; and the fellowship together expands the social qualities.

TO HOLD GARDEN PARTY

An event which is causing much interest is the garden party planned by The City Temple Business Ladies' Club to be held at the home of Mrs. John Glasford, 160 George Road, Wednesday, August 13. The beautiful grounds provide ample space for a large number of booths for the sale of fancy work, home cooking, brain dips and other articles which will make the event very attractive.

There is also to be a "Trade-in-Victoria" and "By-Products" booth. The mysteries of the future are to be divulged and other features will be tea-cup reading and crystal gazing. Afternoon tea will be served and the City Temple Business Ladies' Orchestra will render selections. A splendid vocal programme has been arranged for afternoon and evening. A band will be in attendance during the evening.

MISS H. STEWART TO VISIT EUROPE

Librarian's Resignation Accepted With Regret by Library Board

The Board of Library Commissioners at its meeting last evening accepted with reluctance and regret the resignation of Miss Helen Stewart as librarian of the Victoria Public Library. The resignation will take effect on September 1 and in the meantime the board is taking steps to fill the position.

It is ten years since Miss Stewart succeeded the late Dr. Hands as librarian and she has held the position ever since, with the exception of one year during which she was granted leave of absence to undertake canteen work in France under the Red Cross.

Miss Stewart received her training as a student in the New York Public Library and it was her first-hand knowledge of the value of these student classes which led her to inaugurate a similar course in the local library, an innovation which has proved both popular and successful. For several years she was president of the B.C. Library Association.

A keen student of economics, Miss Stewart has taken an active interest in the public life of the city. On two occasions she was approached by local representatives of the Canadian Labor Party and asked to accept nomination for the Provincial Legislature, while various women's organizations of the city have, in the past, requested Miss Stewart to allow her name to be brought forward and she served a term on the Esquimalt School Board.

After leaving the library, Miss Stewart will make an extended visit to Europe after which her future plans are uncertain, although she has received several flattering offers from the United States.

J.B.A.A. DINNER AND DANCE ENJOYABLE

Oarsmen Present Silver Medal to D. O'Sullivan at Last Night's Affair

The members of the J.B.A.A. again upheld their reputation as successful hosts when at the Empress Hotel last evening a crowd of about 250 danced to an early hour under their auspices. Not a little of the success of the occasion was due to the orchestra, the Victorians, which delighted the dancers with an unusually attractive programme of the latest "jazz" numbers.

The dance was preceded by a banquet tendered to the officers of the association by the members, under the leadership of H. L. Johnson, vice-president. The officers present included F. E. Taylor, president; W. H. Wilkerson, vice-president; A. H. Cox, D. O'Sullivan and T. D. Roberts. Arthur Manson, who presided, presented Mr. O'Sullivan with a handsome silver medal as a token of the members' appreciation of his untiring services in connection with the regatta held by the association.

Paintings by Clever Canadian Artist Coming

Considerable interest will be aroused in art circles in the city by the announcement that Francis H. H. Johnston, A.R.C.A., O.S.A., is sending a collection of eighty of his paintings to Victoria for local exhibition during this month. The pictures will be shown under the auspices of the Arts and Crafts Club.

Mr. Johnston is an artist of considerable note on this continent and in Europe. Several years ago the National Gallery at Ottawa purchased four of his paintings to add to the national collection, while his work is represented in the Canadian art section at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley. Mr. Johnston was also commissioned to execute some paintings for the Royal Air Force memorial scheme.

WOMAN MINER'S CLAIM DISPUTED

Ontario Prospector After Three Years' Hard Work Faces Loss

Port Arthur, Ont., Aug. 2.—The story of how Mrs. Christina Miles, the only woman prospector in North-western Ontario, endured the hardships of a miner's life to stake out gold claims in the mine centre district, near Lake Vermilion, only later to have her right to two forty-acre claims disputed, is being unfolded to-day before Mining Commissioner T. E. Godson, K.C. of Toronto, who is heading a hearing in the council chamber, Port Arthur.

Mrs. Miles, who resides at Fort Francis, has been prospecting for three years, aided by her husband. In August, 1923, she staked two forty-acre claims, near the once famous Golden Star property. In staking the claims, she said, she found traces of work having been done about the property some thirty years before. She had been told that the two claims had been staked many years ago, but that when she visited the property she assumed that they were again open for staking. She accordingly claimed the property, put in corner posts and proper boundary lines and recorded them with the mining recorder at Port Francis.

Now two men, C. E. Powell and E. B. Deschamps, come forward to tell Mining Commissioner Godson that they staked the same claims in 1922. The dispute is being heard under section 54 of the Mining Act which states that at each four corners of a claim, marking posts must be set up and that boundaries must be designated.

Toyne, Miss C. Wyllie and Miss Joe Murray. Other guests included Mrs. Ross, Mrs. W. Cryer, Mrs. E. M. Ankettell-Jones, Mrs. T. Porter, Mrs. A. E. P. Stubb, Mrs. R. Cummins, Mrs. F. R. Hilton, Miss M. Wade, Miss Doris Worfield, Miss Spurling, Mrs. B. Eytan Spurling, Mrs. W. Porter, Miss Coney, Mrs. M. Halhed and Master Basil Halhed. The party returned by launch, arriving shortly after 7 o'clock at the Government dock.

Mrs. Alex. Dunne has left to join her husband at Port Alice, where they are taking up residence.

Mrs. N. B. Scott is the guest of her parents, Col. and Mrs. P. T. Rivett-Carnac, for a few days.

Mrs. A. Howe entertained at tea recently in honor of Mrs. Alex. Dunne. The guests were Mrs. J. Cathcart, Mrs. Rivett-Carnac, Mrs. N. B. Scott, Mrs. J. Syme, Mrs. C. Syme, Miss Hazel and Doris Cathcart, Mrs. H. Flatfield and others.

Miss Rachel MacLachlan has returned from Seattle and Victoria, where she has spent the past ten days.

at the Horseshoe Bay Inn, has returned to Vancouver.

RABBITS AND ELEPHANTS

How the Newspapers Were Discovered by Mr. Wobble; and, As Usual, the Newspapers Got Everything Mixed Up

Everyone, of course, knows all about newspapers. Stop ten men on the street and nine will pause for half an hour on their way home to supper to tell you exactly, and in horrible detail, how devilishly clever and dully stupid their favorite papers are. As for the tenth, either he has not learned to read or he is the editor of the wicked sheet himself and he is so tired of it all that he will admit anything you say.

Over in the Parliament Buildings representatives of the newspapers have been given a room to themselves to keep them from corrupting the whole civil service. The room is well in keeping with the low character of its denizens. It is paneled with stout oak to protect the walls when the newspapermen get angry and throw things around. The floor, too, is of oak so that it may stand the strain when the newspapermen are fighting with one another or welcoming unwelcome visitors. Along one wall is a long row of hooks on which the newspapermen hang their hats and their enemies. A number of desks, ranged about in odd places, are equipped with typewriters, which the newspapermen use to delude the public, and large, sharp paper knives with which they cut the hearts out of politicians who repudiate statements credited to them in the newspapers.

BLACKENED REPUTATIONS

Actually, though, the political correspondents are not violent men—not very violent. Their reputation has been blackened by disappointed statements. Murder, despite fictitious reports to the contrary, is becoming almost a lost art among them, and no one has been seriously injured there since Mr. Percival Buste, who writes philosophical thoughts for the Sunday papers and thinks unphilosophical thoughts the rest of the week, heaved his typewriter with remarkable accuracy at the bald head of an American tourist who wanted to purchase a "honest-to-goodness Government licker."

You may well imagine, then, that David Wobble, M.P.P., sought out the newspaper correspondents' room for the first time in his life the other day with some trepidation. Of course like everyone else, he knew all about newspapers and newspapermen, having telephoned to the business office to complain that the delivery boy had thrown his paper into his favorite rose bush; but he felt like all other new members of Parliament, that he should know the newspapermen more intimately. He might need them later on.

All successful politicians are kind to newspapermen and give them cigars or peppermint drops or pleasant smiles. If they don't they come over by a street car or being counted out by one vote on a re-count. A just Providence sees to that.

A BIG MAN

And so Mr. Wobble opened the door of the newspapermen's room softly and softly thrust his head through the crack. Knowing all about newspapermen, he half expected to find inside a scene of violence and bloodshed. A row of corpses would not have surprised him. Instead, Mr. Wobble's trembling gaze fell upon the gigantic form of Mr. Percival Buste himself, half buried in a pile of waste paper, and pounding away at a battered typewriter with an expression which indicated plainly that each jab was piercing the false heart of some worthless politician.

"Come in," roared Mr. Buste, good naturedly, "and sit down, only don't make yourself too comfortable or you might stay awhile. Glad to see you, Wobble. As you are a politician we hate and despise you; but as you are a fairly decent scout we fold you to our bosoms. In a figurative sense," he added hastily.

"Let me tell you this, Wobble," roared Mr. Buste jovially, "there are two kinds of politicians as we see them from the press gallery—the elephants who blunder through our public life, crushing everything worthwhile, and the rabbits who sit by and let them do it. And I would judge that you, sir, despite your figure, which is more like the first-named animal—you, I say, are one of the rabbits."

"You, sir," Mr. Buste went on, "would be an ideal man to stand across the street and watch a house burn down. Oh, well, you politicians are about as honest as the rest of us but people watch you so closely that you can't get away with the things that most men do as a matter of course. That is the difference. Rabbits and elephants, sir, rabbits and elephants!"

BEER AND RAILWAYS

"What I was going to say," Mr. Wobble ventured, "was that I have some interesting views on the beer problem and the P. G. E. If they would only give me a free hand I could settle those problems."

"Yes," replied Mr. Buste, with a queer look, "my experience leads me to believe that if they let you and the rest of the Legislature have a free hand you could settle everything—everything. There would be nothing left when you were finished. As for the beer problem, I should judge by your general appearance that you understand that pretty intimately, too. As for the P. G. E. you know as much about that as anyone, which is nothing at all. And for those reasons you will make numerous three-hour speeches on those subjects. Oh you rabbits and elephants!"

Finally Mr. Wobble managed to explain his ideas to Mr. Buste and as he rose to go he remarked casually, "Well, if you print anything, just give it as much space as you think it's worth. Remember I hate publicity."

"I know," said Mr. Buste with that queer look of his. "You hate publicity, of course. You all do, you rabbits. Well, I'll give it just what it's worth. Good-bye. Just what it's worth. Ha! Ha!"

Trouble with these newspapermen, they always exaggerate everything," thought Mr. Wobble as he walked away. "Daresay this stuff will be all over the front page. Oh, well, that won't hurt me not so very much. And there's just this about it. I can issue a statement to-morrow denying everything. A very good idea. Very."

Mr. Wobble's hands trembled as he opened the paper that day. Visions of big, black headlines with "Wobble" and "Beer," and "P.G.E." sprinkled through them danced through his mind. But somehow he couldn't find his name in the big headlines or the little ones either. Finally, on an inside page, between a hardware store advertisement and a report of a negro lynching in Georgia, Mr. Wobble discovered himself in two, tiny crowded lines of type—"David Wobble, M.P.P., visited the Parliament Buildings to-day and called on a number of departments."

"These newspapers," said Mr. Wobble with profanity that made his wife turn pale, "they never get anything right."—B.I.L.

"Come in," roared Mr. Buste

LOCAL GOAT BREEDERS PREPARE FOR GOOD SHOW

A meeting of the local executive of the B.C. Goat Breeders' Association was held on Thursday to deal with arrangements for the goat exhibit at the Fall Fair on August 18.

S. L. Jones was re-appointed caretaker, and exhibitors are thereby assured that their stock will have every attention. Owners who cannot look after their own stock must place it in charge of the caretaker.

Major Hibben was appointed supervisor of the goat-milk competition and the milking competition for children, and the judging competition will be looked after by the Judge, S. G. Freeborn, of Calgary, and the secretary.

Mrs. Cheatham will be in charge of the goat products and refreshment booth, and efforts are being made to have some goat milk novelties on sale, such as milk shakes and koumiss (an Indian drink).

Keen competition is expected in the goat milk tests, as there are several fine goats in the district, giving around and over the gallon of milk daily. The judging competition is also likely to bring out a large entry, as it proved most popular and instructive when put on last year for the first time.

Goat-keepers are reminded that the entries must be in by Saturday, August 9, and for the convenience of the public the exhibition has just opened an office at Mr. Nettie's, 574 Yates Street, just below Government. There is splendid accommodation for 150 goats, and every goat-keeper should show his appreciation of the good work done by the Fair management and at the same time help boost the Fall Fair by putting in as many goats as possible. Those showing for the first time at the Fall Fair can enter in the novice class.

Miss Leeming Plays Miss
Suhr in Finals; Vancouver
Girls do Well

The semi-finals of the B.C. tennis championships played yesterday at the Victoria Club courts produced the best tennis of the entire week. The tennis in all the matches was excellent and the scores in the majority of cases were close with three matches being decided by one set.

Ray Casey and Bud Chandler, both of California, battled their way into the final round of the singles championship. Casey defeated Marsh Gordon of Victoria, the sole Canadian survivor, in the singles, in straight sets. "Marsh" played splendid tennis in this match and his back court game was the equal of Casey's. It was Casey's service and overhead work that beat the Victoria man time and again and gave the Californian the victory.

A RECORD SET
Chandler won his way to the final round by beating Brown of San Francisco, also in straight sets. Chandler showed his best tennis of the tournament when he won the first set from Brown in the record time of seven minutes.

Remarkable tennis driving and placing with deadly accuracy. Brown could not cope with Chandler's wonderful length and no time did he breathe "Buddie's" life.

The final of the ladies' singles will be between Miss Suhr of San Francisco and Miss Leeming of Victoria. Miss Suhr won two close, hard-fought sets from Miss Thorne, also of the Golden Gate. It was Miss Suhr's superior steadiness that carried her to the final round. Miss Thorne played excellent tennis in this match and deserves a lot of credit for taking the main championship to a close fight.

MARJORIE BACK TO FORM
Miss Leeming won her way to the finals by defeating Mrs. Henry of San Francisco in a three-set match. Marjorie won the first set without much difficulty. Mrs. Henry came back strong in the second and by steady play won it by 6-2. After the set period Miss Leeming showed her best form when she showed since her return from Toronto, won the deciding set six games to one.

The sensation of the day, however, was the defeat of the star Californian, Miss Suhr and Miss Thorne, by the Vancouver ladies' doubles team, Miss Munro and Miss Gillespie. These two young girls played remarkable tennis throughout the entire match, which was one of the finest ladies' doubles ever played on a Victoria court. The final victory, however, these two girls will go a long way in the tennis world.

CALIFORNIA MEN PLAY
The men's doubles final will be all-American, with the Californians, Casey and Suhr and Brown and Chandler, battling for the championship. In the semi-final Brown and Chandler beat the Victoria first string doubles, Gordon and McCullum, in a good hard-fought match, in which the fine net work of the four players was evened out for a tie.

Suhr, the other finalist, had no difficulty in defeating Sparling of Vancouver and Marshall of Seattle. In the mixed doubles Sparling and Miss Gillespie reached the final through the defeat of Miss Leeming and McCullum. The final was a close fight, but Sparling won by a 6-2 victory in the first set and was unable to continue. It is probable that he will be out of the game for some time.

Final had to be called on account of darkness, after Miss Suhr and Brown and Mrs. Henry and Casey had battled on even terms for two sets. The third set will be played this morning.

Yesterday's results were as follows:

Thrilling Finish
Married By Unusual
Spill At Willows

Sixth Race Brought Five Horses to Wire Almost Together; Outsider Wins

Three Horses Went Down and Jockeys Were Hurt; Long-shots do Well

Thrills galore were crowded into the finish of the sixth race at the Willows track yesterday afternoon. The stands were in an uproar as five horses, two of which were outsiders, galloped towards the wire. Not a length separated them, fifty feet from home. The jockeys were riding their mounts to death, whipping and heaving the reins of the speeding thoroughbreds.

Breaths were held in expectation. The longshots, Olympian King and Cromwell, moved ahead, just a little. The favorite, a dark bay, while Col. Snider and Robert L. Owens, the favorite, had their noses prying between the steaming flanks of the leaders.

The wire was reached. Olympian King was hailed as the winner and Cromwell a scant head behind, second, while Cromwell was third, a nose in rear of Cromwell.

A great cheer rent the air as those who had backed the winners gave expression to their feelings in anticipation of big money coming back to them.

As quickly as the cheer went up it was hushed. Just under the finishing point three horses and the motor car, which was carrying the jockeys, were hurled into the air. A bad spill had occurred, but how it actually happened no one really knows.

Robert L. Owens struggled to his feet while his jockey, Broadfoot, staggered across the track to the rail and collapsed unconscious.

Miss Paige, another entry, was down and her pilot, Hoover, had passed through a pile of flying hoofs, being kicked in the body, and lay on the track.

Leeming, with Frederick up, the last of the field, stumbled over the pile and went down, injuring her jockey as well.

Track assistants rushed to aid the jockeys. The horses from stepping on them. Broadfoot and Hoover were attended by Dr. J. Grant and rushed from the track in a motor car. Frederick, whose shoulder was injured, was able to walk to the jockey room. Hoover sustained several broken ribs and other injuries, while the other jockeys were unhurt.

It was one of the greatest finishes ever seen here and it is unfortunate that it had to be attended by such a bad spill.

LONGSHOTS COME HOME
The racing yesterday was good, with several longshots getting in the money and making the fans sit up and take notice.

Ray Lark, with W. Motter up, won the big noise of the day, winning the second race with ease and paying $48.30 for straight bets and two others.

Seven Old Blues Appear
With Corinthians To-day

Montreal, Aug. 2.—With seven old Blues in their lineup the Corinthians, England's crack amateur soccer eleven, will play the first game of their Canadian tour against an all-star eleven of Montreal at Alexandra Park this afternoon.

Bronzed and in the prime of condition the Corinthians arrived here last night. They met by James Keith, president of the Province of Quebec Football Association, and members of the association council, officials and other representatives of the various soccer leagues of the city and district.

"I am delighted to be back in Canada," said W. R. Brown, who is in charge of the visitors and who is making his third tour of the Dominion.

HEFTY FULLBACKS
Among the Corinthians who will turn out for the game are N. C. Ashton and J. S. Morrison, the amateur international fullback. Both these men are well over six feet in height and Montreal forwards will have a hard time to pass them.

Lashmar, the goalkeeper, is a former Liverpool Ramble, and is regarded as a good substitute for the noted Howard Blythe. He is a former Londoner.

Bayley is Matched
To Fight Chicago
Boy in Local Ring

Joe Bayley, claimant of the Canadian lightweight championship, and "Puggy" Morton of Chicago, who claims to have defeated Gloria Tait, the man who now claims to be the holder of the Canadian title, have been matched to fight ten rounds at an early date.

Morton is a rugged youngster who has been in the ring with Johnny Dundee, featherweight champion; Charlie White, the well-known Chicago battler, and Pal Moran, another prominent fighter.

The date of the bout will be announced later by Billy Davies, who will handle the card. This fight will be a real "must" for the fans. There was some talk of Billy Allen getting a return bout with Bayley, but, in view of the fact that Joe put this veteran on his feet, it was thought advisable to bring on a new man.

STOBART HONORED
"Dicky" Stobart of Nanaimo, recognized as an outstanding player, has been awarded a gold souvenir medal.

A strong team of soccer players from England is coming out to Australia next month. The team will play in New Zealand on Monday next, and games will also probably be pulled off in Suva and Honolulu. This tour has been a splendid success with eleven matches won, eight lost, seven drawn.

The Canadians have scored a total of forty-six goals as against thirty-two by their opponents in Australia. For the rest the Dominion team has made a favorable impression and shown Australia many fine points of the association game. Injuries to several of the Canadians, however, have severely handicapped the aggregation.

Sons Will Take

Rithet Cup Game

On Monday night at the Royal Athletic Park the Native Sons of Canada and Spencer's will meet in the Rithet Cup knockout series. The winner of this game will hold the trophy for this year. The game is scheduled to start at 8:30.

At present each team has won one game, the departmentals taking the first, while the Canadian team has won the second. Both teams are confident of winning Monday's game.

Don Cameron, the Sons' star, who will be on the mound, is a fine pitcher. He has been in the Rithet Cup series, having won it in 1923. He is a right-handed pitcher and has been in the Rithet Cup series, having won it in 1923.

At the last meeting of the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club, it was decided to hold their annual swimming gala next Saturday afternoon, August 9, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. A fine program has been arranged, which includes four British Columbia championships, the 400 yards relay, 220 yards junior boys' relay, and ladies' and men's water polo.

Ruth and Hornsby
On Their Way To Set New Records

Yankee Slugger Leads American League in Hitting and
Other Branches

Hornsby Likely to Lead National League For Fifth Consecutive Year

Chicago, Aug. 2.—First in runs scored, among the hitters and first in the hearts of baseball fans is Babe Ruth, king of home-run hitters, who now promises to surpass his record of 1921 by which he established himself as the best home-run hitter of record. That year he smashed out thirty home runs and won himself champion of champions.

This season Babe, in July, broke his best previous mark for home runs made in one month when he cracked out his fourteenth against the White Sox in Chicago; Ruth has thirty-three home runs against a mark of thirty-seven the year his record was made.

ON THE RAMPAGE
The great Yankee slugger scored ninety-nine runs in ninety-nine games. He has played an average of a run a game, and has made 129 hits, a gain of eleven in seven games, for a total of 229 bases. His batting average was boosted five points in the last week and to-day he is leading the hitters with a mark of .384. Ruth does not always get a chance to hit the ball, as he has a record of ninety-nine bases on balls, also an average of one base a game.

Maurice Archdeacon, of the White Sox, said to be the fastest man in baseball, has been playing regularly in the averages, but has played in only fifty-five games. Falk, another White Sox star, has again challenged Ruth, and, after five points in his average. He is the real trailer to Ruth with a mark of .379, with Jamieson, of Cleveland, third with .343.

Eddie Collins, captain of the White Sox, is leading the base-stealers with thirty, an increase of four. Other leading hitters for sixty or more games: Goslin, Washington, .341; Sheely, Chicago, .340; Cobb, Detroit, .338; Collins, Chicago, .337; Boone, Boston, .336; Heilmann, Detroit, .328; Speaker, Cleveland, .328; Meusel, New York, .326.

HORNSBY AFTER RECORD
Rogers Hornsby, of St. Louis, is well on his way to shatter the record of Hans Wagner, former batting champion of the National League, a record Hornsby tied last season, when he won his fourth consecutive championship.

Other leading hitters for sixty or more games: Goslin, Washington, .341; Sheely, Chicago, .340; Cobb, Detroit, .338; Collins, Chicago, .337; Boone, Boston, .336; Heilmann, Detroit, .328; Speaker, Cleveland, .328; Meusel, New York, .326.

Seabright, N.J., Aug. 2.—William M. Johnston, America's second ranking tennis star, went down to a sensational defeat at the hands of Howard Kinsey, Pacific coast champion, here today by defeating the victor of the Seabright invitation tennis tournament. Kinsey triumphed after the limit of five sets 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 1-6, 6-2, flashing perhaps the most brilliant tennis of his career.

Miss Mary Browne scored the first California victory when she overcame Miss M. Macdonald, national elite court champion, in the women's singles final 6-0, 6-1.

Later in the day, Miss Browne scored another triumph, this time with the aid of Mrs. T. Horace Fugate, in the final of the Seabright invitation tennis tournament. Kinsey triumphed after the limit of five sets 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 1-6, 6-2, flashing perhaps the most brilliant tennis of his career.

Max Carey, of Pittsburgh, failed to increase his base-stealing record of twenty-four, and is being preceded by Heathcote, of the Cubs, who has twenty-one.

Other leading hitters: Bressler, Cincinnati, .317; Young, New York, .314; Kelly, New York, .309; French, New York, .308; Griggs, Chicago, .307; Snyder, New York, .306; Nett, Chicago, .304; Blade, St. Louis, .302.

Argos' 140-Pound
Crew Victorious

St. Catharines, Aug. 2.—The Argonauts of Toronto in the finals of the 140-pound row event of the Royal Canadian Henley, finished in 8:10.5. Hamilton was second, Westside, Buffalo, third, and Dons, Toronto, fourth.

C. S. Argonauts, Toronto, won the junior singles final in 9:45.4.5. P. Burns, Dons, Toronto, was second.

HARMS GAIN VERDICT
Spokane, Aug. 2.—Billy Harms of Oakland, won a decision here last night over Frankie Murphy of New Orleans, in a fast ten-round battle. Harms carried the fight to Murphy, and seemed to have the best of all but two rounds. In the sixth Murphy landed a solid punch that staggered the Oakland boy, but he slipped into a clinch and recovered by the time the referee reached the batter, and came back with a fusillade of blows that nearly leveled the round. They weighed 162 pounds.

Winnipeg, Aug. 2.—J. A. McVicar, president of the Manitoba branch of the Canadian A.A.U., yesterday issued a long statement dealing with criticism in the selection and handling of the Canadian Olympic team. He says:

"No doubt this committee has made mistakes as any organization is bound to do at times, and particularly we agree that they made a mistake in connection with the Canadian Swimming Association. The Manitoba branch of the union went on record last night as being in favor of becoming allied with the Canadian Swimming Association on a basis which was at that time satisfactory to them. We do not as members of the Canadian Swimming Association at the time for the Olympic trials in Winnipeg and thoroughly discussed all points of interest. As was stated some time ago the Manitoba branch proposes to insist on a Western team and we are now developing before the annual meeting of the A.A.U. there is no doubt the necessary change will be made in the constitution of the Canadian Olympic Committee."

AS CROWE DEMANDED DEATH PENALTY.—Here is State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe (No. 5) demanding the death penalty for Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of Robert Franks; at the opening of their hearing before Chief Justice John R. Caverly in Criminal Court, Chicago. Leopold (No. 2) and Loeb (No. 3) appear to be little moved by the prosecutor's plea. Clarence F. Darrow (No. 1), chief counsel for the defence, is listening intently to Crowe's every word. Benjamin Bachrach (No. 4), assisting Darrow, is sitting next to Crowe.

OPERA OF THE FUTURE.—In the music that will be listened to a hundred years from now great changes in form and content must be expected. Viafara here embodies his idea of the dramatic action of a lyric play in that advanced age, when "super-sopranos" will sing and all kinds of "modern" machinery will be used on the opera stage. The scene represents a mezzo-baritone accomplishing his villainous designs upon the defenceless heroine by the use of a super-anesthetic, instead of the clumsy daggers and poison that are now the fashion.—Musical America.

British Columbia Leads Fishing Industry of Canada

Prolific Barkley Sound Herring Waters Offer Golden Opportunities

1. Shovelling herrings like coal into boxes and unloading on the dock. They are caught by the ton in the Barkley Sound waters.
2. A big catch in one net.
3. Herring packing plant.
4. A fishing steamer with nets.
5. Unloading herring at a saltery.
(The first four pictures are reproductions from Telephone Talk.)

An immigration scheme whereby whole families who have been engaged at fishing for generations will be brought from the east coast of Scotland to Vancouver Island, where a model village is being constructed, has been explained by Capt. I. J. Vince on his return to Canada after a visit to Scotland, where all the necessary arrangements were made.

Under this plan it is claimed hardworking and industrious people, skilled fishermen and fish-curers, will be given an opportunity to leave Scotland, where adverse trade conditions and a succession of bad seasons have brought them to poverty, and come to Canada, where working under conditions very similar to those to which they have been accustomed they will be able to live a prosperous and fruitful life.

"We are bringing fifty fishing families back to the west coast of Vancouver Island," says Capt. Vince.

"At Sarita, on Barkley Sound, we have constructed a model village for them, all the houses of which contain from four to five rooms with every modern convenience.

"Already we can sell China all the salted herring we can handle, so we have an assured trade there," he says.

Expert Scottish Lassies Bring Old Country Plan Of Herring Curing Here

Barkley Sound Plants Employ Numbers of Girls Who Are Adept in the Method of Curing Herring For the Market; British Columbia Can Invade Markets Which Were Preserved to European Fisheries.

ONE hundred and fifty tons of herring gathered in a day, yet with ordinary regulations there is no danger of the supply being depleted. Runs fairly regular each year, and markets to be found for the catch valued last season at $1,686,698 in British Columbia. This is one of the industries off the coast of Vancouver Island, where rugged, experienced fishermen prepared to tackle the excitement and strenuous effort for the big pay it brings are making as low as $800 for six months work and as high as $5,000.

LED THE BOATSMEN

The $5,000 for one boatman, it is admitted is exceptional. He was a husky Swede with a vision. Day after day off Barkley Sound he sailed his boat to the herring grounds. The elements meant nothing to him. Long hours and hard work left his rugged constitution unweakened. He had one aim in life that season. He was determined to be top fisherman among the Barkley Sound men, and to make $5,000 that season. He made it and $200 besides. It was an exceptional year, and an outstanding case but the average to a boat that year was $2,000.

The principal herring fishery extends from October to February, although herring are to be found in quantities in coast inlets in nearly all months of the year. Departure Bay, at Nanaimo and Barkley Sound at Nanaimo are the two places where most of the fishing is done.

A KNOWN INDUSTRY

The mining industry of the Island is just scratched, the timber land has been cruised but the fish are there and it is known they are there and in the nature of the herring they probably, with reasonable regulations, always will be there. But as far fields look greenest, so it is with Vancouver Island people and Vancouver Island herring fisheries. The Japanese are there every year, eager for licenses and struggling to get their licenses before the quota limited to Japanese are issued. Enterprising Greeks and Swedes show the way in the country to which they have come to be citizens and reap the just rewards of their enterprise, but while many Victorians look to the South as the land of promise, hundreds of Seattle boats are coming each year to the Barkley Sound waters which the local people may never turn to before they leave the land of their birth. They bring their own ice and they go home with more under their arms than the herring, claimed to be of such a quality that with proper methods of marketing they can successfully invade markets which were formerly the preserve of European fisheries, and this on a competition of quality and price.

THE U. S. BOATS

Halibut fishing was virtually unknown before the war. Until the "Eat More Fish" campaign was started they were thrown away. Now Seattle fishermen come to Barkley Sound for the prolific catches. There are approximately one hundred boats out of Seattle for every half dozen from Victoria and Vancouver, and millions of dollars' worth of fish from Barkley Sound water are distributed throughout the United States. From San Juan, Port Renfrew all along the coast to Barkley Sound and Tofino, Hesquiat, Nootka, Kyquoot and Quatsino the boats work. There is the usual comradeship of men who share the dangers of the sea during operations, but every boat becomes a keen rival in the race to market the fish. Many a thrilling race has been seen to the port of Seattle. The race is to land the catch in port by Thursday, the day before Friday, fish-day. What may bring as high as thirty cents a pound on Thursday, may not fetch more than fourteen cents Saturday.

CURED HERRING

The cured herring business is being developed in British Columbia now, but to develop the business, in other lines of fish fish so prepared in the Eastern United States the principal points being Chicago and New York. This market was formerly supplied from Great Britain and Holland, but B. C. Scottish cured is now a competitor.

In a recent article on the subject, "Telephone Talk" states that the Pacific herring differs but slightly from the herring of Europe and is as like it that it passes for the same commercially. At one time there was supposed to be a difference in the preserving qualities of the Pacific herring, but more skillful methods of handling and packing have proved otherwise. The fish is similar in size and appearance to the herring of the North Sea, but somewhat smaller than the herring caught on the Newfoundland Coast.

Developments on the coast tend to show that with the proper methods of preparation and marketing, British Columbia can successfully invade markets which were the preserves of European fisheries. A place in the market was secured by supplying the "Scottish cured" herring. As the name implies this method is the one followed in Scotland and consists of cleaning the fish, salting and packing it in barrels of salt. There is a large and steady market for fish so prepared in the Eastern United States the principal points being Chicago and New York. This market was formerly supplied from Great Britain and Holland, but B. C. Scottish cured is now a competitor.

SCOTTISH LASSIES

The enterprise of those interested is shown by what had to be done to bring about this condition. A number of Scottish lassies who were adepts in the method of handling the fish were brought to this country and careful inquiry resulted also in the packers being able to secure the services of a number of women living in British Columbia who had formerly worked in the herring plants in Scotland. Expert herring-barrel makers who had done that work all their lives were also brought to British Columbia and although the experiments involved considerable expenditure, the result was gratifying, as the cured fish found a way into the Eastern market.

Somewhat the same condition applied to the smoked herring bladders and kipper. There was a good demand for these in the West of the United States, but the market was well established, there being a prejudice against Pacific Coast fish. The packers set to work to give the consumer what was wanted and after much effort were successful. To-day the smoked herring from British Columbia is even more favored than that from Europe.

There are two refrigerating plants on Barkley Sound where the herring are used for bait purposes, and the Canadian Fishing Buteadale on the Northern Coast for the same purpose.

A FLOATING PLANT

One of the unique features of the industry on the West Coast of Vancouver Island is the floating plant operated by the Somerville Canneries Ltd. The steamer Laura Whalen, a 3,000-ton boat, carries on her decks all the machinery necessary for the curing process and according to her owners is a forerunner of other "floating canneries" which are being operated with such success on other parts of the Northern Pacific Coast. The modern process lends itself well to this scheme where, with the latest machinery and twenty-five people, the same work may be carried on which fifteen years ago took one hundred people to accomplish. The "floating cannery" too can follow the herring run and become established wherever the fish are most plentiful.

Over Fifty Per Cent. of Fish Products of Canada Come From This Province

Value Last Year Was Over $18,000,000; Twenty-two Years Ago it Was Less Than $5,000,000; One Firm Caught 50,000 Tons or 400,000,000 Herrings Last Year.

FOR eleven successive years British Columbia has produced more fish than any other province in the Dominion of Canada. The fishery products last year were valued at $18,921,100 or fifty-one per cent of the total fishery products of the Dominion. In 1902 these products were valued at $4,748,365 so it will be readily seen that the industry has been steadily growing.

The total value of each principal species of fish taken in British Columbia is as follows: salmon, $12,120,000; halibut $2,915,000; herring $1,686,698; cod $226,000; black cod $121,000; pilchards $161,000; crabs $61,000; clams $65,000.

Engaged in making the catch of this vast quantity of fish are fourteen steam trawlers of ninety tons or over, ten steam vessels of thirty to 125 tons, 172 sailing and gasoline boats ten to forty tons, 3,371 sail and row boats and 2,974 gasoline launches making a total of 6,531 fishing vessels representing an investment of $4,857,373.

CANNING INDUSTRY

Tributary to the taking of fresh fish is the canning industry which gives employment to thousands of workmen. Engaged in the canning and curing of British Columbia fish are one clam cannery, fifty-six salmon canneries, four fish oil plants and forty-two fish curing plants. The capital invested in these plants amounts to $12,607,000.

The first canning on a large scale took place in 1873, when 189,000 cases of salmon were packed. A 500 cases of salmon since then the pack has risen until last year it totalled 1,220,328 cases, an increase of 646,778 cases over the previous year; but although this was the fourth largest pack in the history of the province it was far less valuable than in many other years, due to the fact that $40,183 cases or sixty per cent consisted of pink and chum salmon. Nineteen twenty-three has seen an even greater increase in the amount of salmon packed, no less than 1,341,651 cases being produced; of these $58,991 cases were of pink and chum, so that the value of this year's pack will be relatively the same. Most of the gain in the catch was made on the Skeena and Naas Rivers. About 1890 the fishery for halibut was begun, and from 6,877,640 pounds in 1899 the catch has risen to 25,500,950 pounds, practically all of which was shipped from Prince Rupert; no less than 900 box cars were required to transport this enormous catch to its markets.

HERRING

The coast of British Columbia also bids fair to rival the North Sea in the catch of herring, one firm this year having caught in the neighborhood of 50,000 tons or about 400,000,000 fish.

Whaling also plays an important part in the fisheries, 187 of these mammals being killed last year with a yield of 283,314 gallons of oil valued at $129,954. Among other by-products obtained were 326 tons of whalebone and meal valued at $15,060 and 230 tons of fertilizer valued at $13,500. This catch includes whales of many kinds, sulphur-bottom, finback, humpback and occasional sperm. This year the catch totalled 377 whales with a corresponding increase in value.

NATIVE WEALTH

It will be seen from the few preceding remarks that British Columbia stands possessed of a vast natural wealth of fish that equal in quality of any in the world. To insure the proper development of this wonderful resource, should be the aim of every true citizen.

Fifteen Thousand Workers Directly Given Employment by Fisheries of Province

The fisheries of this Province give employment to nearly 15,000 workers directly, and indirectly to thousands more in the production of tin containers, building materials, food stuffs for use in the canneries, whaling stations, curing plants, etc. In addition the fish being of such excellent quality, is of great food value, comparing most favorable with other forms of edibles.

A strong argument for the development of British Columbia's fish industry is made by A. A. Milledge, manager of the British Columbia Products Bureau in Vancouver, during the Home Products Campaign, in which the Victoria Chamber of Commerce co-operated.

"Every person in this Province should insist upon being supplied with British Columbia fish," he says. "By so doing, citizens will expand the present industries, give employment to more workmen, consequently increasing the population and encouraging new settlers to provide the necessities of life for the workers in the factories. It will thus be readily seen that by developing the fishing industry the other industries of the Province will in turn receive added impetus, and the movement will result in general prosperity for all British Columbia.

SUITABLE COAST

The conformation of the coast of British Columbia is especially suitable for fisheries; the shore line is made irregular by many deep inlets and estuaries, and from the coast a feeding ground for fish in the shape of a sea ledge runs out from fifty to 100 miles before dropping away to ocean depths. The Pacific Ocean and the large rivers along its 7,000 miles of coastline abound in fish of all kinds, of which the most noted is salmon of various varieties, bred in British Columbia rivers, matured in the Pacific, and which regularly return after four years to the parent streams in immense numbers to spawn.

The pick of the fishermen of the East coast of Scotland will come to Barkley Sound to develop the industry under the immigration scheme outlined by Captain Vince. The first will come in September and others will arrive later in the year.

MODEL HOMES

A hospital and bathing beach has been prepared for them and they will be provided with model homes. Numerous applications were received and the men coming are declared to be as fine a race of men and as industrious and as skilled workers as one could wish for. During the Great War they saw active service and since then have been putting up a great fight against post-war depression. They come from coast towns of Nairn, Banff, Peterhead, Lossiemouth, Buckle, McDuff and Portsoy. Under the scheme they will be guaranteed employment at good money under conditions far better than those at home. Homes, fishing tackle and other needs will be provided for them when they arrive at Barkley Sound.

INTERESTED IN SCHEME

Mr. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, Premier of Great Britain, has shown a great interest in the scheme to bring the fishermen from Scotland to Barkley Sound. Captain Vince has also conferred with Mr. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Colonial Secretary and other prominent officials in England. F. C. Wade, K.C., Agent General for British Columbia in London, co-operated with Captain Vince in furthering the scheme.

SIR HENRY THORNTON SEES AUTO DEVELOPMENT LOOMING

Says He is Interested in Motor Transportation Because it is Important as a Source of Traffic Directly and Indirectly for Railways of Canada

National Motor Transport Congress in New York Hears Railway Chief Give Opinions as to Future of Motor Industry, and Its Relation to Transportation

In an address to the National Motor Transport Congress recently, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways system, who, with his party, is visiting Victoria to-day, said:

"I have been extremely interested in the development of the motor vehicle industry for several reasons, among which could be mentioned:

- (1) Its importance as a source of traffic directly and indirectly for our railways.
- (2) Because it has become such a potent factor in our daily economic life.
- (3) Because it has appeared on the horizon as an active competitor with our railways for certain classes of business.

Our present economic structure is so complex and the process of evolution apparently so rapid that I consider it a wise policy for us to have a free and open exchange of views to the end that we may fully comprehend all the factors entering into the motor vehicle industry and its relation to the general scheme of transportation," he continued.

"Fairly reliable information is available regarding cost of operation of motor vehicles in passenger service, because this system has become highly organized and statistics in regard thereto have been maintained over a considerable period of time. The same cannot be said, however, in regard to the motor truck, and it is very doubtful indeed if any very conclusive data is yet available in regard to the contribution which motor trucks should be called upon to make, in order that they bear their proper proportion of the maintenance of the highways which have to be specially constructed to accommodate such heavy traffic, the capital cost of important highways running from $20,000 to $50,000 per mile.

TWO ASPECTS OF MOTOR TRANSPORT

It must be quite clear that the motor vehicle, so far as it affects the railway, may be considered from two standpoints:

- (1) As a passenger facility.
- (2) As a freight facility.

As a passenger facility, it is of course to be judged by the ordinary standards the public is accustomed to apply to passenger accommodation, namely:

- (1) Its ability to render regular, comfortable, safe, adequate and satisfactory service as efficiently as possible under all ordinary conditions.
- (2) The cost of the service.

"There does not appear to be any doubt that the motor vehicle might quite reasonably be expected to fulfill these conditions in regard to a certain limited class of passenger traffic, particularly on branch lines and in large terminals, thereby sup-

STUDEBAKER LIGHT SIX ROADSTER

One of the most popular cars on the medium priced and stylish motor market. It is inexpensive, but at the same time contains all the power of the bigger models which Studebaker manufactures. It embodies all the grace, comfort and durability of the finest machines which this company turns out. Mr. Jameson is proud of the light six roadster, as are those who own them.

HAS THRIVING AND PROMISING TRADE IN AUTO BUSINESS

Here Since 1900, Mr. Jameson Has Handled Studebakers For Ten Years

R. J. Jameson, the sole remaining member of the one-time firm of Jameson, Rolfe and Willis, has been carrying on his business alone since the other two partners left him to follow lines of different choosing some time ago. Ever since 1914 Mr. Jameson has been handling Studebaker cars. In the beginning Mr. Rolfe was his partner, and the two were joined in 1915 by Mr. Willis. From 1915 Mr. Jameson and Mr. Willis were left to carry on together.

and in 1922, Mr. Willis, too, took up business in another direction. "I realized the great possibilities of the Studebaker car from the beginning," said Mr. Jameson to The Times yesterday, "and the rapid growth and progress of the Studebaker Company makes my prophecy correct. I have handled this line since 1915, and the huge organization with which I am connected is one of the safest, sanest and most dependable in the motor world."

Mr. Jameson is now the distributing agent for the whole of Vancouver Island in Studebaker models. He has a great volume of trade coming in from all points. His customers are always satisfied, and the firm's reputation is of the highest standing. Studebaker manufactures no less than thirteen types of cars, all distinctly different from the other, and all attractive in their various forms and designs. The Studebaker coach work is second to none, and the factory turns out a highly efficient car, whose appearance is as good as its inner parts, and the vital mechanism of the machine. Possibly this is the reason why exacting motorists choose Studebaker models, and why Mr.

Jameson is so satisfied with his business generally. In the light six type of car there are four models, the touring, the roadster, the coupe and the sedan. The special six is manufactured in four similar models. The big six car is made in touring, coupe, sedan, speedster and speedster sedan. This wide variety allows of a larger choice and every type of car is there for the requirements of the public.

BUSINESS CAREER

"I came to Victoria from Montreal in 1900," said Mr. Jameson, telling the story of his business life. "In the past I was in the engineering department of the big manufacturing concern of the Royal Electric Company. When I arrived in Victoria I took a position with the Hinton Electric Company, which liquidated in 1913. From that time onward, I was in business for myself.

"First of all, when I first branched out independently, I was handling a large business in electrical supplies, gasoline marine engines, mechanical appliances and machinery. I have kept this business, as far as possible, in connection with the bigger enterprise, and find that one line helps the other and that each makes the other the more valuable.

"Business in Victoria is excellent at the present time," he continued. "And our specialty complete lines of parts and tires are always in demand. Diamond Tires, made by the Diamond Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, are some of the finest pieces of motor rubber on the market. In addition to these departments we have a machine shop, electrical department and charging plant, and a large service car, with derick equipment, which the company maintains."

Mr. Jameson still handles gasoline marine engines, and Regal and Ker-math are the two chief types which he keeps in stock. Electrical and mechanical appliances and machinery still form a large part of the big plant, and constitute a portion of the volume of trade taken in by the company. Mr. Jameson is optimistic as to the future of his business and in connection with the conditions in Victoria generally, particularly in the motor world, for there is an ever-increasing demand for cars here.

"Everybody should learn to drive a car," says an auto journal. At any rate, those who sit behind steering wheels, brother.

DISADVANTAGE OF BOBBING

"About the only disadvantage we can see to bobbed hair," says the Fine Bluff Commercial, "is that women flivver drivers won't have any repair tools, now they have abandoned hairpins."

MOTOR SPEEDERS WARNED BY SIGNS

Chicago, July 26.—Motorists will have little excuse in being caught at evading speed laws this Summer. Towns throughout the country are very active in putting up warning signs, with the aim of better traffic regulations and of improved accident record. Here are several signs with varied appeal, as reported by one tourist:

"This is a good road. It will cost you money to burn it up."

"Slow down. Look before you weep."

"Don't covet your neighbor's side of the road."

"Look out! You may meet a fool around the corner."

"Stop! Look and Live!"

"Don't speed. It is 'Good morning, Judge,' here as hereafter."

Glistening Body Finish Easily Preserved With Proper Care

When you bought your car, one of the greatest factors in influencing you, was the general finish and appearance of the car. You not only want a car to take you where you want to go, but you want a car you can take a pride in owning. There is no doubt whatever, you get a great deal more pleasure when driving a car that has a fresh glistening body than you do when driving one that looks old and dull.

The question is, how long can the finish of the average car be kept shining and bright? The answer is, it depends entirely on the treatment it receives. The finest body finish can be ruined in a very short time by carelessness or improper treatment, while with proper care it will last for at least one year and perhaps two.

If your car needs washing and polishing up, here's the way to go about it. If you are going to wash it out in the open and the sun is very warm, select a spot somewhere in the shade. If you attempt to wash out in the hot sun, the water dries off before you have a chance to use the chamois, with the result that the finish has a fine collection of streaky marks. For the same reason it is a wise plan never to wash your car directly after a long run on a very warm day when the body is warm—give it a chance to cool off.

If you have a nice shady spot, let's start. Before you turn on the water, remove the nozzle from the hose, so that the water will flow without any force behind it. Neglect of this little point has ruined the finish on thousands of cars. When the water strikes the body with any great force, it simply drives the mud and dirt into the varnish and permanently dulls the finish.

In washing, allow the water to flow on gently over the body, at the same time sponging softly in straight lines to and fro. Never sponge with a circular motion, for if there is any grit in the sponge, the circular motion will cause scratches that will show up badly. When you use straight to and fro motions, if there are any scratches they will not show so much. After you have sponged over the whole car, gently hose it all over to remove any dirt or grit that may remain.

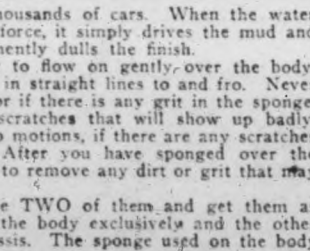

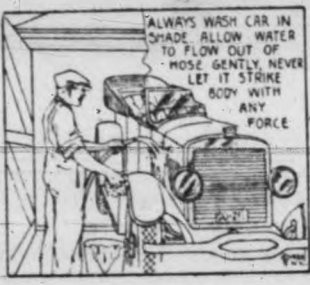

A word about sponges. Use TWO of them and get them as large as possible. Use one for the body exclusively and the other use only for the wheels and chassis. The sponge used on the body must be kept absolutely free from grease, oil, kerosene or any other substance. Any of these oils will dissolve or soften the finish and for this reason must be kept off sponges and chamois.

If the body has any mud on it, remove as soon as possible. There are two very good reasons why mud must not be left to dry on the varnish. First, because there is always a certain amount of lime and ammonia in mud that will eat into varnish and spot it. Second, you are liable to scratch the finish with your fingers when you are careful when removing it. The best way to remove mud is to play the hose on it gently and allow the mud to float off. Do not get impatient and try to rub the mud off with the sponge before it is softened.

After hosing and sponging, finish off by drying with a large chamois skin. It is a good idea to have a bucket of clean water each time you dry off your car so you can dip the chamois and rinse it out.

After washing all over, do not allow the water to dry on the body or it will leave the finish spotted and streaky. If, however, you do happen to be in a hurry, you can remove the water by the fortunate enough to get the body spotted up a little from this cause, do not worry about it, as a few washings and exposure to the sun will soon cause it to disappear.

Never use soap on the body, use nothing but pure water. Sometimes it is necessary to use a little soap or kerosene in the water to remove the grease or oil from the wheels and chassis, but be very careful indeed not to use the sponge you use on the body to sponge the wheels.

LAST MINUTE NEWS ON STOCKS AND FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

PRICES HIGHER IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 2 (By R. P. Clark Co.)—Big broad market in the business situation. Prices generally higher for current movement. The oil stocks forced to the front in the last hour and the industrials generally gave a good account of themselves, especially American Can and General Electric. Public demand and rather quiet and quite a little bullish enthusiasm is around this afternoon. It is the consensus of opinion that some very favorable developments with respect to foreign portfolio situation will be divulged in the very near future. It goes without saying that any clearing up of the situation on the latter side would have material benefits. The status of things in Europe has been a detriment for some time. Should the turn for the better develop and indications of the present time that they will, we think it will have a striking effect on world trade and of course from an economical point of view apply to the stock market. We are still convinced that we are in a period of rising prices in the stock market.

SUBSTANTIAL ADVANCE IN MARKET LEADERS

New York, Aug. 2 (By B. A. Bond)—The stock market during today's short session gave another demonstration of its inherent strength when market leaders such as American Can, Baldwin Locomotive and General Electric reached out toward new highs, the latter selling over their previous peak. The volume of issues were comparatively quiet, but Chesapeake and Ohio and Pere Marquette gained ground. The oil stocks, which are well behind the balance of the market. The selling of the past few days has been on the theory that the market is for a good rest, but shorts were again forced to cover at a loss and are beginning to realize the truth of the old saying that it is difficult to sell a bull market short and make a profit. About the only question to decide in a market such as we are having now, is what to buy. Some of the better rested a few days and no doubt are in a buying position again, while the advance in the oil stocks go further now that they are out of the rut.

GRAINS UP IN CHICAGO TO-DAY

Chicago, Aug. 2 (By R. P. Clark & Co.)—Wheat—Black rust has assumed a more menacing aspect in Manitoba, and this with the upward movement in the Canadian wheat market, has caused a decided advance in the price of wheat. The market is more active and for this reason, would buy on the set-backs.

CORN FUTURES CONTINUE ADVANCE

Chicago, Aug. 2 (By B. A. Bond)—Another sharp advance in corn futures, featured the grain markets in today's short session. Wheat continued to advance to some extent with corn, but there seemed to be plenty of wheat for sale on the rallies and while the news from the Canadian Northwest was bullish on grain values these advances were not followed up to any extent with buying orders. Corn continues the strong market and probably will go to much higher levels. There is not the following on the long side of corn that there is in wheat and this makes it comparatively easy to put corn up. The cash position and crop condition in corn is far stronger than in wheat.

READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS

Recognize Opportunity's Knock

"Diligence is the Mother of Good Luck" wrote Benjamin Franklin.

"This explains why some persons—your know them—always seem lucky in getting what they want at a price they can afford."

"Every day opportunity knocks at your door to show you better ways to live. The man you think so lucky is only alert in keeping in touch with life through the advertisements in his newspaper."

"Well informed men recognize two kinds of news."

"One tells us about other people's joys and sorrows and triumphs. The other—generally called Advertising—deals with our own affairs and how to get things we want or wish want. Advertising is News."

"You owe it to yourself to read the advertisements in your own newspaper every day."

"Take the trouble to find out what today offers you in health, happiness and comfort."

Good Luck is bound to follow.

IN FIELD AND WOOD- LAND
AN ISLE OF THE SEA
BY ROBERT CONNELL

Not many miles from Victoria there rises from the waters of the Straits a small island of about an acre's area. The waves wash its sides without any semblance of a bay except a slight indentation on the east. The rocks rise steeply from the sea and are clothed with barnacles and olive green fucus, brightened in spots with the emerald of the sea lettuce. They are composed of gabbro, in places so coarse in grain that crystals of hornblende six and eight inches long may be found with proportionally large feldspars which gleam brilliantly in the sun. So little of lichenous growth do the waves in their ceaseless energy permit that the rocks show their crystalline structure in the clearest manner on their exposed sides. But upon their summit it is a different matter, for this little isolated island is a nesting place for the sea birds.

WHERE THE SEA GULL NESTS

The other morning I had the happy opportunity of visiting the island with Messrs Munro, Cornwall and Hardy. Mr. Munro had heard of the island's occupation by the sea-gulls and was anxious to confirm the report. The sea was calm so that we were able to make a landing without difficulty. Overhead the sun shone in a cloudless sky, beating down with some fierceness on the rocks. In the distance American cruisers could be seen at their manoeuvres, black lines with a wisp of white foam. We had scarcely gone a dozen yards when we came across a pair of small objects huddled tightly against the rock, head down, perfect pictures of passivity. In color they were a greyish yellow with numerous dark spots, enough at any rate to break the ground color and so give a striking example of protective coloration. The air above was full of the motion of gulls' wings and resounded with their plaintive cries, for they apprehended danger from our visit. The doped downy things were young gulls and it was our business for more correctly Mr. Munro's to capture them and to attach to one leg the little metal band which checks the movements of the migratory birds. In this way there is gradually being brought together a body of information about the remarkable seasonal and geographical movements of birds.

Some not long hatched, one or two beginning to feather. The nests are rude enough structures—a flat bed of old grass or seaweed with no attempt at concealment and open to the elements. A few had in them a pair of large dusky green eggs flecked with darker color, but by far the most were empty, the work of incubation over.

Love Stakes

By MILDRED BARBOUR

Some warning voice whispered to Natalie who the sender of that message was, and she said hastily that she believed it was best to wait for Mr. Sheldon's return. But the girl was already dreading the words: "Am I in great distress over your silence. What has happened? Are you a fair-weather friend? Life is cruel and bitter and unfair. Send me some word of comfort. Signed J. A."

LURE

Curiously enough, Barry had no inkling of the fact that Natalie had received the message from Jeannette Amory. Her hand—unmistakable—emotion had scrawled the words unrecognizably.

His ignorance and perhaps his innocence, caused him to say abruptly that night at dinner:

"Natalie, you've been crying! Are you so unhappy here?"

"No," she denied, after an appreciable hesitation.

"But you're lonely here with me?" he persisted.

"No," she said again. He smiled wryly.

"Perhaps I should have said that you're lonely anywhere—Trent is not alone."

She made no answer to that. Her eyes remained lowered on her plate.

He looked positively harassed. Twice he opened his mouth to speak and closed it again.

"They had coffee in the living hall," he followed her out silently and watched her while she stared into a chair before the fire and stared into the fishes.

Natalie couldn't have told, to save her life, why she had cried when she thought he was by adding that exhibitors will agree there was more money in the "old days" when pictures were shown to larger audiences and lower admissions, than there is to-day with orchestras, prologues and high admission prices.

Strange as it may seem to you, you may broaden your ideas and increase your knowledge of your city and its people by answering a few want ads now and then.

the water and saw that the moon was reflected there, as it had been that night in Naples when Trent had leaped beside her at the fountain's rim.

She drew back with a well-learned shudder, knowing that Barry's watchful eyes were on her.

"Would you like some roses?" Barry suggested. "The late ones are always the most fragrant."

She assented indifferently. He gathered her a great armful of glowing crimson ones, with drops of dew like fairy jewels on their velvet hearts.

"Oh!" Natalie shuddered as her fingers touched their chill moisture. "how cold they are for all their flaming color!"

Barry laughed shortly. "Like yourself—are they not?"

She raised sweet, questioning eyes to his.

"You really think that of me?" "Let's not discuss it," he took her arm abruptly and started back toward the house.

At the foot of the steps leading to the stone veranda, he lifted her hand and brushed it with his lips quite formally.

"You won't object if I take a brisk turn on the beach, will you? It's stuffy indoors to-night."

She shook her head and went slowly from him up the steps. At the top, she turned and smiled down at him, waiting below.

It was a strangely provocative little smile. There was a coquetry in it which he had never before seen in Natalie.

She leaned over the low parapet, the moonlight shining on her pale blonde hair, leading dark mysterious shadows to her veiled eyes. Her lips looked as crimson and soft and fragrant as the yellow roses in her arms.

"Unconsciously lured, without his own volition, he found himself drawing near to her until he stood just below the balcony.

It was the age-old setting of love stories immemorial.

The fact that Barry had maintained silence toward Mrs. Amory was encouraging, but not as greatly so as it appeared at first glance. It seemed to her more likely that Barry was playing the game with rigid adherence to the rules. He apparently didn't consider it sporting to cure a wife of her infatuation for another man, and at the same time, carry on a spirited affair with Jeannette Amory.

After a while, she rose and wandered restlessly around the room, half-watching her for a time, then suggested:

"It's pleasant out to-night and a peach of a moon. If I get you a wrap, would you care for a stroll in the garden?"

She acquiesced absently and let him fetch a wrap and lay it around her shoulders.

They sauntered in silence down the gravelled paths through the shrubbery to the pergola. Outside its shadow, the fountain flung its jewelled spray upward.

Natalie looked into the depths of the again—just think of that! She and Hugh can adopt a baby and maybe they will be happy after all.

"If Harriet is herself again, I am confident that Hugh will come around all right," declared Barry. "His fondness isn't fundamental. It's the result of loneliness and loss of responsibility. Hugh's the sort of man who must have a woman as a companion to go about with. He doesn't care much for me as long as Harriet could accompany him everywhere, he was perfectly happy. When she could no longer do it, he found someone else, that was all."

"I hope you're right," sighed Natalie. "Particularly I hope that Hugh won't do anything indiscreet while Harriet's in this precarious state. A crisis of any sort might throw her back into invalidism forever."

While she was speaking Natalie folded up her letters and laid them aside. She noted that Barry was doing likewise, but her heart fairly stopped with the torment of jealousy when she saw him thrust the orchid envelope unread, into his pocket.

What, she wondered, could that mean? Was he with a lover's jealousy, saving it for private perusal? Or did he sense something in it which he wished to postpone?

The incident was driven from her mind shortly after that when a motor swept up the drive, came to a stop at the porte cochere and George Trent stepped coolly out.

Natalie and Barry, lounging in the warm sunlight in a corner of the veranda sheltered from the crisp autumn wind, saw him at the same identical moment.

Barry, on recognizing his visitor, turned to Natalie. He said nothing, but there was reproach and disappointment in his fine eyes.

She flung out a protesting hand. "I didn't send for him," she said quickly. "Believe me, I played fair!"

Trent had already replied them. He swayed off his hat with an insolent gesture and flashed them a brilliant smile.

With jaunty coolness, he sauntered up to them, apparently quite unconscious of the strangeness of the situation in which an ardent suitor comes unbidden to see the object of his devotion under the very eyes of a husband who is his life-long friend.

Miss King Says Proper Marriage Laws More Important Than Good Streets

Short Speeches, no "Bunk" or Flowery Eloquence, Her Campaign Principle

Transfers to be Allotted to Commission Subject of Discussion

Boston, August 1.—Staid old Boston is going to get a shock, or two this Fall when Mary V. King, nurse and politician, cuts loose with her campaign to be elected mayor.

In fact, the fight that Miss King promises would stir any city. And it is not elected she will not be elected for lack of a platform for it ever a candidate had a platform Miss King has one.

Miss King, in her thirties, bobbed, with a strong tendency toward trousers and square-toed shoes (and if not trousers at least pockets in her skirts) building her platform of sharp-edged planks—and she is planning her campaign with no "It gives me great pleasure" speeches in mind.

HER PLATFORM
Against prohibition. Women should not be allowed to wear long hair. Women should smoke any time and anywhere they want. For easy divorce and hard marriage. Good roads, good health and morals. No political speeches.

"I don't believe in prohibition," she tells you tersely, "because it is reactionary, impossible and conducive to law violation."

"I believe in bob-hair, because it is efficient. Long hair is insanitary—it is hot on the head and hairpins are tormentors that have destroyed women's concentration abilities for ages. As mayor I would see that women employees bob their hair—purely as a measure of efficiency."

Yes, J. King's most unusual candidate explains, crossing her knees and clasping her hands over the accessible knee. "You know, if William Jennings Bryan bobbed his hair he might reform, too."

"And smoking? Oh, it's not important. Women should smoke, to be sure. Why not? Or, nobody should smoke. Smoking doesn't hurt anybody—nor help anybody." Miss King dismisses the idea with a shrug, but her ideal will cause more than a shrug on Beacon Hill where the descendants of the Mayflower are still standing on Plymouth Rock.

Yes, J. King would pay attention to marriage laws and health and morals. Marriage would become an important business of the city government.

"Persons desiring to marry would first have to pass physical tests. If they were—say, marfanoid, heathen, they could announce their intentions and wait for three months or so—time enough to think about it. Such a person would not marry. If by night infatuation from the more substantial thing of marriage."

"All this Miss King points out, would lead to fewer subnormal children, and fewer subnormal children is more important than fewer bumpy streets—is it not?"

The idea of having a feminine city government impresses Miss King as being an important experiment. Right now she is endeavoring to impress women's organizations with the idea that they should support her.

It was left with the president to arrange a delegation from the board, and the following resolutions are to be submitted:

1. That owing to the alarming spread of Canadian thistles and other weeds, it is highly desirable that more concerted measures be taken by the Boards of Trade for a better enforcement of the Noxious Weeds Act.

RIVER BANK ROAD
On the suggestion of O. T. Smythe a discussion took place as to the necessity for the Government being requested to gazette a public highway along portions of the bank of the Cowichan River. This was left over for further consideration.

The president reported a visit to Mount Vernon, when he, accompanied by Messrs. H. E. Prevost and A. H. Peterson and W. C. Tanner, went to interview the management of the Carnation Evaporated Milk Co. re their project to establish a Condensory in British Columbia. This matter will be heard of further, in the meantime, W. M. Fleming and W. C. Tanner are securing particulars of information required.

IRRIGATION
The meeting then listened to a very interesting address given by W. M. Fleming on the necessity of provision for more water in the Cowichan district by irrigation, and went into considerable detail, accompanying his remarks with colored diagrams. Mr. Fleming has taken very considerable trouble in getting various statistics, and those present listened with considerable interest and the subject will be borne in mind by the board in the future.
